How Solly Got Diamonds.
Old Mrs. Cholera.
How Is Russia?
Foolish, Thoughtless Hen.

—By ARTHUR BRISBANE—

SOLOMON BARNATO JOEL, known to the world as "Solly Joel, King of Diamonds," died yesterday. Son of a British saloonkeeper, Joel went to South Africa and became not only a diamond king, but also a gold king and a copper king. As is usual, there was no luck in his success.

THE BOERS used to buy diamonds from natives, but would not tell Joel, or anybody, which natives had the diamonds for sale. Joel, pretending that he must have a horse immediately for a special purpose, paid an extravagant price for an old white horse belonging to one of the Boer diamond buyers.

Joel started off with the horse before daylight, leaving the reins loose. The old horse stopped at all the places where the Boer was accustomed to buying diamonds. After that, Joel bought them, paying more. He controlled the diamond business when he died.

Moral: Use your brains.

MILLIONS OF high-spirited Americans ask:

"What's the matter with the country?"

Several things are the matter, the worse being the fact that we are now paying for the big war.

Dr. P. Gourrich, who really knows something about business, says one important trouble is "lack of industrial co-ordination." We have industrial units working separately, not in touch. Steel men know only steel, rubber men only rubber, the oil men only oil.

In war there is co-ordination under superior power, bending everything in the direction of victory, and you see prosperity.

ANOTHER TROUBLE is fear. Dr. Gourrich illustrates that with an ancient story from the East.

Driving to Stamboul, a man was stopped by an old woman who begged a ride. He looked at her sitting beside him, was frightened, and asked:

"Who are you?"

She replied:

"I am Cholera."

The man ordered her to get out and walk. Old Cholera persuaded him to take her along, on her solemn promise not to kill more than five human beings, adding:

"You know, I shall reach Stamboul anyhow."

As a pledge she handed him a dagger, the only weapon with which she should be killed, saying:

"I shall meet you in two days. If I break my promise you may stab me."

One hundred twenty died of cholera. The man, furious, took the dagger, met the old woman and was going to kill her. She stopped him, saying:

"I have kept my agreement. I killed only five. Fear killed the others."

Many slaughtered in this unpleasant depression have been slaughtered by fear that kills values.

AN AMERICAN, just returned, brings interesting observations. He is a banker, not a Communist.

Russia seemed to him like a world upside down, everybody trying to buy goods, everybody working. When trains stopped, young Russians stormed the dining car, "flashing money, eager to buy cigarets and other things. They waited in long queues to buy all kinds of luxuries."

He was surprised by the "prodigious number of young babies everywhere" and the enthusiasm of young workers in the big automobile plant that will be the biggest in Europe. The workers included young girls, from 18 to 21.

Such a plentiful supply of babies is a promising sign for Russia. People discouraged, downtrodden, without hope, usually have few babies. This was discovered in Central America, when a religious organization, with excellent intentions, put Indian tribes on an industrial basis. The Indians simply stopped having children, and the plan had to be abandoned.

DEPUTY SHERIFF DAVIS, of Yaphank, Long Island, owns a cat and a hen. The cat had kittens, and abandoned them. The hen adopted them. At night, the kittens nestle under the hen's feathers. That's the story.

There will be another story later, when the kittens get big, and strong enough to eat the hen, or the little ckickens, their foster brothers and sisters. The hen will know later how some good American citizens feel that adopted certain lines of stocks, back in 1929.

TOSCANINI, WITH one possible exception the greatest living orchestral conductor, has had difficulties in Italy, his passport taken away, and is a "voluntary prisoner" in his house in Milan.

Mussolini is interested in Italian genius, musical or other. He would not let any little misunderstanding interfere with the safety or comfort of as great a man as Toscanini, who is a credit to the Italian people, whatever his political opinions.

DENTIST DIES IN COLLISION OF THREE CARS

Several Injured Seriously as Other Auto Mishaps in District Take Heavy Toll

An East End dentist was dead, four men were seriously injured and numerous other persons were in hospitals with less serious injuries today following a series of automobile accidents in the Pittsburgh district, according to police and hospital reports.

Dr. Benjamin A. Zimmerman, of 1009 North St. Clair street, was killed in a collision in Bigelow boulevard, between the Seventeenth Street Incline and Washington street, in which his machine and two others were involved.

TWO BADLY HURT

Karl Ackerman, 34, of 260 Parkway avenue, Mt. Lebanon, and Richard McNally, 31, of 1020 Wallace avenue, Wilkinsburg, who, with Miss Hazel Gerner, 21, of 210 Ormsby avenue, Mt. Oliver, were riding in another car, are in the Montefiore Hospital with fractures of the skull and internal injuries. Miss Gerner is in Mercy Hospital with lacerations.

Dr. Zimmerman, it was said, was returning from Beaver Falls, where he had been visiting Miss Elva Petler, his fiance, when the accident occurred. He and Miss Petler, who is ill, were to be married next week, it was said.

C. W. Eyman, of 6236 St. Marie street, driver of the third car involved, escaped with a laceration of the nose. Homicide detectives were investigating the collision.

TROLLEY COLLISION

W. W. Street, 38, of 2740 Cobden street, is in the South Side Hospital and Lawrence Sauters, 45, of 3200 Arlington avenue, is in St. Joseph's Hospital with serious injuries, received, police said, when Street's automobile skidded on the Twenty-second Street Bridge, struck a street car, and was thrown against a bridge support.

GIRL RUN DOWN

Stella Jeskey, 19, of 815 Progress street, was in the Allegheny General Hospital with abrasions received, according to a police report, when she was struck in East Ohio street by a machine operated by G. H. Dennison, 30, of 113 Hillsboro avenue, Brentwood.

Martin Schwer, 21, of 519 Second street, Oakmont, and Robert Johnson, 22, of 159 Grant street, Verona, were confined in the Pittsburgh Hospital with head and body injuries. Police said their machine skidded into a ravine at Peterman's Corners, Leechburg road.

Struck by an automobile near his home, George Janosik, 32, of 2728 Woodstock avenue, Swissvale, was in Braddock Hospital with a compound fracture of the right leg.

CAR STRIKES FIRE PLUG

After striking the parked machine of Robert McGowan, 410 Overbrook boulevard, in Saw Mill Run boulevard, police said, Richard Stevens, 23, of 646 Cater street, Hays, lost control of his car and it crashed into a fire plug, snapping it off at its base.

Stevens and a passenger, Mat Stark, 48, of 685 Baldwin street, Hays, were treated for slight injuries. Henry Bokart, of Latrobe, another passenger, was unhurt.

John Hehman, of 45 Princeton street, Overbrook, escaped injury when his car struck guard posts in the Saw Mill Run boulevard, near the Central school, according to a police report.

EAST END SHOP WRECKED BY TIME BOMB

Police Find Long Fuse After Blast Hurls Debris Into Structure Across Street

Windows were shattered in a roofing and tin shop at 7202 Hamilton avenue early today when police say a time bomb, placed near the side of the one-story frame structure, exploded. Samuel McKaig, of 215 Tokio street, and E. L. Durn, of 612 Seagert street, conduct the tin shop.

Police said bits of window frames were blown across the street, shattering a large window in the barber shop of Louis Marzocco, 7203 Hamilton avenue, and a mirror in the shop.

A six-foot fuse, found on the Zenith way side of the structure, indicated that a time bomb had been set off, according to Lieut. Frank Shine.

New Bomb Attempt Fails in Clairton

Clairton police today were investigating an attempt to bomb the home of Frank Grase, of 501 Park avenue. A dynamite bomb, consisting of 15 sticks of dynamite in a section of pipe, was found under the Grase home late yesterday by Police Lieut. James Maloy.

It is believed the bomb had been placed there to be exploded yesterday morning, the same time a bomb wrecked the home of Frank Muto, 547 Wilson avenue. Seven persons in the Muto home escaped when the bomb exploded yesterday morning.

Lieut. Maloy said the bomb found under the Grase home had failed to go off because the fuse did not burn properly.

Duquesne University Halts 5 Dismissals

Dismissal of five Duquesne University students because of infractions of dormitory regulations has been reconsidered by the board of discipline, it was announced today by the Rev. William E. McDonnell, dean of men.

The students, whose names are being withheld, are regarded as on probation. Rumored campus strikes by students did not materialize.

Heart Attack Kills Man on Street Car

Thomas M. Watts, of 7921 Tioga street, who collapsed on a street car at Tioga and Oakwood streets today, following a heart attack, was dead when taken to Pittsburgh Hospital, according to a police report.

His wife, Mrs. Lillian Watts, was confined in her home because of illness, it was said, and could not be told of her husband's death.

Man Buried in Ditch Collapse Found Dead

Imprisoned in the collapse of a 10-foot ditch, a laborer, known as "Nick," was dead when reached by rescuers early today. The ditch was being dug in Marlboro street, Wilkinsburg, by W. S. Hunt, a plumbing contractor.

PARTNERSHIP IN INDUSTRY ADVOCATED

By GUGLIEMO EMANUEL
International News Service.

VATICAN CITY, May 23.—Partnerships between capital and labor, enabling the working man to share in the profits of industry, was urged by Pope Pius XI today in his encyclical on labor supplementing the famous "Rerum Novarum" of Pope Leo XIII. His Holiness said:

"We consider it advisable that so far as possible labor agreements be completed on a co-partner basis, so that workmen may become interested in property management and partake of profits."

WORKING WIVES ASSAILED

The Pope "deplored" conditions necessitating wives and mothers of families working to augment a workingman's inadequate income.

The encyclical, an outline of which was given out by His Holiness last week in the course of his second world-wide radio broadcast, was published in full in the Osservatore Romano, semi-official Vatican organ. Totaling 20,000 words, the encyclical traces the development of labor conditions throughout the world since the issuance of the "Rerum Novarum" 40 years ago and contains the church's recommendations for the future.

BROADCAST ON SHORT WAVE

The document went deep into outstanding labor questions, weighing the arguments of capital and labor and drawing definite conclusions. On the question of salary for labor, while insisting the working man should be paid a living wage to spare him the hardships of poverty, His Holiness declared:

"It is unjust to claim exaggerated salaries when industry cannot afford them without ruin own ruin and ensuing disa on a for the workmen. The aim should be to insure work for the greatest possible number."

Official Latin and Italian translations of the encyclical were to be broadcast later in the day from the Vatican City radio station. Father Gianfranceschi, director of the station, will read the paper. The broadcast will be directed to Europe on a wavelength of 50.26 meters. It is not expected today that the English translation will be prepared until Monday or later next week.

A lengthy summary of the Pope's encyclical, the most complete obtainable, will appear in the Sunday Sun-Telegraph.

Ritchie in Crash On Way to Funeral

JURY DEBATES BARBECUE CASE

GREENSBURG, Pa., May 23.—A jury today gave no indications of agreement on verdict in case of Paul E. Boggs, Russell Wentz and John Greenwald, Pittsburgh district youths, tried here for the murder of Francis J. McGreevy, proprietor of a barbecue stand on the Irwin-McKeesport road, in an alleged holdup, February 27.

The case was given to jury at 9:15 last night and when no agreement was reached at 11 it was locked up for night. Special Prosecutor Fred B. Trescher asked for a verdict of first-degree murder, while Attorney H. K. Shaner, of defense, asked acquittal on grounds that state's witnesses were mistaken in identification of the accused youths.

NEW YORK, May 23.—(AP.)—Mrs. Edwin Godfrey Merrill, president of the Parents' League, is seeking abolition of the stag lines at debutante dances. She favors a return to the pre-war custom of dance cards.

Planes' Barrage Of Sardine Cans Takes New York

—By ARTHUR 'BUGS' BAER—

Over 600 Army planes captured New York. They took it right away from Ford owners.

It was a friendly demonstration. They just bombed the city with picnic plates and empty sardine cans.

But after you have been lowbridged with a sardine can dropped 10,000 feet you get a rough idea of what might have happened if it had been thrown in anger.

We saw the same sky jam in Dayton and Chicago. It's a beautiful sight through a pair of cheap binoculars.

The mezzanine armada roared through the sky and roared back again. Over 600 motors that beat as one. And all in response to editorials demanding an adequate noise in the sky.

We got it yesterday. Also a smoke screen in case of a tie.

We're ready for the next war. The only claim for exemption is to be so roundshouldered they can't strap a parachute to your back.

The Army is doing fine. Now let's all go down to the junkyard and cheer the Navy.

Musmanno to Make Police Bill Plea

A plea for public support of the original form of his coal and iron police bill, which has been revised by the Senate, will be made tonight by Representative Michael Musmanno, in an address over WCAE.

Representative Musmanno has recently returned from a tour through the state, where he studied the coal and iron police situation. He will speak of the effects of the present plan of industrial police operation, and will ask public support of his bill in its original form.

BEEBE TO HOLD VICE PARLEY

With only four of 30 alleged disorderly houses closed in the neighborhood of the Hill District's Franklin School, Inspector Albert Beebe has requested Principal W. A. Laning to confer with him today. Laning will ask for more drastic action in closing the remainder of the resorts, which, he alleges, have been running openly without police interference.

The four houses were closed as a result of a drive on vice spots near Pittsburgh schools promised by Public Safety Director James M. Clark, following Laning's charges in the Sun-Telegraph. Laning stated that his children were going to and from school through a district thick with vice, ranging from dope to the "numbers" racket.

No action has been taken by Beebe on charges that conditions near the Girls' Business High School and the Clifford B. Connelley Trade School are even worse.

Dry Agents Held in Crash With Police Radio Car

After their machine is said to have sideswiped the East End police radio scout car today, Willis O. Harris, of 137 Grandview avenue, and Paul A. Reilly, prohibition agents, were charged with violation of automobile laws.

Harris was arrested at Second avenue and Smithfield street. Police said he was driving a machine wanted in connection with the accident. Harris told police, they said, that Reilly was driving the car at the time of the crash, and that they were chasing another car. Reilly was held by police and charges were filed later against him.

Police said the scout car was damaged by a motorist who failed to stop, and that Patrolmen John O'Connor and Leon Dayton, attached to the cruiser, broadcast the license of the hit-skip driver. A downtown cruiser picked up the prohibition car.

Mussolini Hurt as Horse Throws Him to Ground

ROME, May 23.—(AP.)—Premier Mussolini was thrown from his horse today while taking his usual morning constitutional on the grounds of his home, the Villa Torlonia, but suffered only slight injury, principally cratches on his face.

After brief treatment, the Duce went to his office and afterward to the palace, but cancelled a review of several hundred Bulgarian gymnasts visiting Rome, which he had scheduled for today. He did receive the Bulgarian minister however, as well as his own assistant.

The injury he suffered was said to be quite superficial and confined to his face. It was reported that his horse stumbled, throwing the premier to the soft earth

PINCHOT DUE TO NAME RULE AS SCHOOL HEAD MONDAY

DELAY LIKELY ON P. S. C. AND COURT POSTS

Senate Expected to Act on Ex-Schenley Principal as States Instruction Chief

By ED PRENDERGAST
Staff Correspondent.

HARRISBURG, May 23.—The name of James N. Rule, former principal of Pittsburgh's Schenley High School, will be submitted to the Senate for confirmation as superintendent of instruction Monday night, it was rumored today.

It was considered doubtful, however, that the executive would name a successor to James S. Benn on the Public Service Commission, or to the late Justice Sylvester B. Sadler on the State Supreme Court.

Following the adjournment of the Legislature next week-end the Governor may give recess apointments, it is understood, in all vacancies except that of education chief, which by constitution demands the Senate be given the chance to confirm.

Rule at present is acting superintendent as well as first deputy.

The confirmation of Commissioner Samuel Walker, of Butler, to the Public Service Commission also will be brought from committee, it is expected.

HUNT 3RD MAN IN GIRL'S DEATH

YOUNGSTOWN, O., May 23.—Information gained through grilling of the two suspects arrested in connection with the murder of Betty Palko, titian-haired beauty, formerly of Clairton, Pa., whose body was found near here Thursday, today sent police in search of a third man.

Louis Vitullo, 35, poolroom proprietor, who has admitted, police say, that he is the father of the woman's two children, was being held along with Victor Mihaly, 21.

Vitullo told police, it was said, that he had an engagement with the girl here, but that he was unable to keep it. He sent Mihaly to meet her instead, he said. Mihaly denies meeting Miss Palko.

CUBAN TROOPS ROUT REBELS

HAVANA, May 23.—(INS.)—Government troops today drove back a band of rebels after a skirmish in which they were forced to resort to gunfire, the military supervisor of Oriente province reported to the Department of the Interior. No casualties were reported.

During the last two days conflicting reports of rebellion in the province were received in the capital. While the government confirmed the rumors, opposition leaders were unanimous in denying them.

5 Bandits Rob 40 Workers, Get $3,000

NEW YORK, May 23.—(AP.)—Five men held up 40 bricklayers in the basement of a building under construction in downtown Manhattan yesterday and escaped with $3,000, virtually the entire payroll.

The bricklayers pursued the robbers, overtaking one of them. He described himself as Bernard Keegan, 19. Police took 10 other suspects into custody.

Railway Club Meet To Hear Engineer

The Railway Club of Pittsburgh will hold its monthly meeting next Thursday night at Fort Pitt Hotel. P. J. Board Commutes Murder Sentence

Frank Mussolino, sentenced from Allegheny County for murder in the second degree, was granted a commutation of sentence yesterday by the pardon board, while the applications of John Tomaszewski, Allegheny County, second degree murder, and Stephen Zeck, Butler and Allegheny County, robbery and assault, were refused.

The plea of Arthur G. Marshall, Allegheny County, sentenced for bigamy, was held under advisement. The minimum sentence was commuted in the case of Michael Bernardino, Allegheny County, convicted of felonious assault and battery.

SPAIN DECREES CREED LIBERTY

MADRID, May 23.—(AP.)—A government decree, guaranteeing equal freedom of worship to all religious creeds, generally regarded as the first step toward separation of church and state, was the subject of extensive comment today.

Under the decree no one shall be forced to state his religious conviction in connection with the service to the state or to attend religious functions, and all creeds are free to worship, publicly or privately, without limitations.

A commission on religious problems in drafting a document which would terminate the concordat with the Vatican and provide for absolute separation of church and state.

Panic in Madrid Exchange Calmed

MADRID, May 23.—(AP.)—Jose Pelaez, presiding officer of the Madrid Bourse, was forced to address the exchange yesterday to calm excitement aroused by a radical break in stock and bond quotations on the Barcelona exchange. He insisted Spain was fundamentally sound.

The Bourse closed calmly, but prices sagged.

Kellogg Mentioned As Arms Delegate

WASHINGTON, May 23.—(AP.)—The American whose name is attached to the famed Kellog-Briand pact to outlaw war may represent his country at the general disarmament conference next year.

Frank B. Kellogg, a former secretary of state, who now is a judge of the League Court, is being mentioned in preliminary discussions as a possible delegate.

HOOVER, BROWN OFF FOR CAMP CONFERENCE

By GEORGE E. DURNO
International News Service.

WASHINGTON, May 22. For the third consecutive Saturday, President Hoover left Washington this morning with a group of government officials for his camp on the Rapidan, intent on spending a week-end in conference over the state of the federal budget.

Today he took with him Postmaster General Walter F. Brown and his four assistants. From all indications, the Postoffice Department will close its books on June 30 with a deficit of $140,000,000. Brown and his aides say an increase in the first-class mail rate to 2½ cents is necessary to keep the postal deficit down. Such a proposal was made at the last session of Congress, but it met with so much disfavor it never reached the floor.

In addition to the postal officials, the executive took with him Gov. Theodore Roosevelt, of Porto Rico. Political gossip of late has had young "T. R." as a possible running mate for the President in 1932.

Other guests included Edsel Ford, son of the automobile magnate, and Mrs. Ford.

HOOVER BLOCKS EXTRA SESSION

WASHINGTON, May 23.—(AP.)—Because he believes a special session of Congress would hinder economic recovery, President Hoover has decided against calling one.

His statement to this effect at the regular press conference yesterday was interpreted as a direct answer to Senate Republican independents and others who have insisted an extra session should be convened to deal with unemployment and depression. The President said:

"I do not propose to call an extra session of Congress. I know of nothing that would so disturb the healing processes now undoubtedly going on in the economic situation. We cannot legislature ourselves out of a world economic depression; we can and will work ourselves out."

President Praises Millikan on Air

WASHINGTON, May 23.—(AP.)—President Hoover, from the White House, introduced Dr. R. A. Millikan, of Pasadena, Cal., to a radio audience last night as one of America's foremost scientists.

Dr. Millikan spoke immediately after from Los Angeles, giving the first in a series of addresses arranged by the National Advisory Council on Radio Education.

Musmanno Fights For Police Bills on Air

PHILADELPHIA, May 23.—(AP.)—M. A. Musmanno, Allegheny County representative, in a radio address here asked that popular pressure be brought to restore his coal and iron police bill to original form in the Senate. The bill was passed by the House May 5.

The Judiciary General Committee of the Senate, Musmanno said, materially changed the bill.

10-TON ROLLER RUNS WILD

A 10-ton gasoline-driven roller, used by the Shaler Township Road Department, slipped out of gear and dashed down a steep hill for a distance of more than 800 feet yesterday and landed in a ditch, overturning.

The apparatus, used in rolling Manhattan street, was parked in front of 320 Parker street. It started down the 45-degree grade at a rate of 30 miles an hour. The engineer jumped, landing uninjured. Half way down the street, the roller made the turn of the street, struck a tree, broke off a front iron wheel and continued to the ditch.

MRS. PINCHOT ASSAILS P. S. C.

READING, Pa., May 23.—(AP.)—Mrs. Gifford Pinchot, speaking at a public meeting in Boyertown last night on the alleged excess profits of public utilities, said:

"Public utilities in this state have not only made 20 per cent, 50 per cent, and 100 per cent profits on their investments, but there have been instances of 500 per cent profits and even 3,000 per cent profits.

"The Public Service Commission was named to keep rates down, but it has never made a move in that direction. There must be changes in the law toward that objective and if this session of Legislature will not do the job, the governor will call a special session."

BROWNSVILLE, Pa., May 23.—Joseph Sasko, 25, Herbert, a motorman at the Filbert mine, was crushed to death by his motor when his head came in contact with the mine roof.

CAUFFIEL WINS COMMUTATION

HARRISBURG, May 23.—(AP.)—Gov. Pinchot yesterday announced he had granted a commutation of the minimum jail sentence of Joseph Cauffiel, 60, former mayor of Johnstown, removed from office and sentenced to two years in jail for misdemeanor in office and conspiracy.

The action was based on a recommendation of the State Board of Pardons, which heard the mayor's attorneys plea Wednesday. Under the law, the Cambria County Court will have to act on the parole, and the former mayor may be released from jail within a month.

GUARD TO TELL OF PRISON FIRE

COLUMBUS, O., May 23.—(AP.)—Harold Whetstone, guard at Ohio Penitentiary, will testify Monday in the trial of Clinton Grate, convict, charged with murder in connection with the deaths of 320 men in the fire at the prison last year.

Whetstone, stationed in a guard house atop the warden's residence the night of the fire, took the stand late yesterday, but was interrupted by state objection to a defense question whether there were any fire drills at the penitentiary. Court adjourned before admissibility was determined.

NEW WITNESSES EXPECTED IN GIN MURDER

International News Service.

VALPARAISO, Ind., May 23.—Four new defense witnesses were thought to be on their way here today to testify in behalf of Virgil Kirkland, Gary (Ind.) high school football star, who is standing trial a second time for murdering his sweetheart, Arlene Draves, at a gin-drinking party last fall.

R. A. Manning, of Davenport, Ia., whose letter, presented shortly before Kirkland took the stand and created a small sensation yesterday, may appear in court. Another letter from him received late yesterday said he and his wife and another couple from Peoria, Ill., who claim they saw a girl fall from the car in front of the hot dog stand where it is claimed Kirkland and some of his friends attacked the dead girl, were leaving for Valparaiso.

The latest letter said:

"I am sorry for these people and for the boy. None of us know only what happened there at the hot dog stand but all four know the truth of that part of it has not been brought out."

In a final effort to save himself from a possible death sentence, Kirkland testified yesterday, telling in sordid detail the events of the night of the fatal party and of his affair with Arlene many months preceding that. He denied that he attacked and murdered the young girl he claims to have loved and planned to marry.

He told of making love to her at various times during a year or more and narrated the details of a poker party a few weeks before Arlene met her death. He also declared Henry Shirk and Paul Barton, co-defendants who turned state's evidence against him, were the ones who attacked the Draves girl.

WOMAN LINKED IN KILLINGS

LOS ANGELES, May 23.—(INS.)—With David H. Clark, former prosecutor, charged with the murders of Charles H. Crawford, politician, and Herbert Spencer, editor, authorities today widened their search for a woman known as June Taylor, and an explanation of the web of politics, crime and publicity which caused the double killing.

June Taylor, missing since Thursday night, when it became known that Clark was sought for questioning, was reported to have had a conference at San Quentin with Albert Marco, crime leader of Los Angeles, who is serving a prison sentence. The woman, also known as Mrs. A. M. Donovan, was said to own the hotel which Marco used as headquarters before his conviction.

Indict 2 Accused In Metal Swindle

JERSEY CITY, N. J., May 23.—(AP.)—The Hudson County Grand Jury indicted Col. Telamon Crucer Smith-Cuyler, Georgia planter and financier, and Joseph Brooks in an alleged $250,000 metals swindle.

Their arrest followed discovery of large metal stores in New Jersey warehouses. It was charged they had purchased the metals on credits, intending to dispose of them at a profit before payment.

U. S. TO SEEK CUT IN FOOD DISTRIBUTION COST HERE

RETAIL SURVEY AID PLEDGED BY DEALERS

Commerce Official Tells of Plans for Market Study At Manufacturers' Meeting

Reduction in the cost of food distribution will be one of the aims of a retail survey of conditions in Pittsburgh to be made next fall by the Department of Commerce, it was announced yesterday by D. C. Montgomery, of the Washington bureau.

He spoke at the luncheon of the Pittsburgh Association of Manufacturers Representatives in the Fort Pitt Hotel. He said that as a result of the movement here, he hoped a permanent institution will be set up to help research work in distribution costs. Wholesalers and retailers will cooperate in the survey.

The number of failures in the grocery business has caused the Department of Commerce to delve into the grocery subject in particular. It was stated by Shirley E. Haas, secretary of the Louisville Food Distributors Association, that 85 per cent of new businesses last only seven years.

He attributed overproduction and excessive costs in distribution as the cause of financial troubles in the business. Louisville had a survey, such as planned for Pittsburgh, with favorable results. There was a sharp decline in the number of bankruptcies. C. A. Kolb, chairman of the local association; John S. Herron, president of City Council, and Harry C. Milholland also spoke.

RAIN PERILS N. Y. AIR 'BATTLE'

NEW YORK, May 23.—Come to save America's greatest city from the onslaught of a mythical enemy, 672 Army airplanes, wings drumming to a light rain, nestled in Long Island flying fields early today ready to attack.

Unless fair weather comes—and official reports promised rain all day—the attack was a matter of doubt. Bad weather threatened to postpone a war.

Planes Refuel But Fail To Give Show Here

Pittsburgh went back to business today after spending many futile hours yesterday gazing skyward in anticipation of a huge aerial demonstration.

BASEBALL POOL SUSPECT HELD FOR COURT

Sam Rost, of Rankin, alleged head of the General Braddock Sales Baseball Pool, was held for court two hours after he had surrendered to county detectives. He posted bond of $2,500 with Alderman Thomas A. Flanigan before whom the hearing was held. Late yesterday District Attorney Andew T. Park ordered county detectives to make an information against Rost.

The information against Rost was made shortly after county sleuths had raided the alleged headquarters of the pool in Rankin. Albert Allison, of 2213 Linden avenue, McKeesport, and Joseph Rosin, of 748 Oakmont avenue, Oakmont, were arrested. Allison was released, but Rosin was committed to jail for further questioning today.

John A. Carey, of Leckey way, North Side, alleged agent of Rost, whose arrest in Dormont several days ago resulted in the raid and the arrest of Rost, also was held for court on a similar charge. The charge was made against Carey after Park had learned that Carey was attempting to gain his freedom from the county jail through habeas corpus proceedings.

Carey was arrested by Police Chief Ralph Miller for violation of the automobile laws. In his machine Miller said he found 4,000 tickets for the lottery. Park, at first, did not make an investigation, but later lodged Carey in the county jail and began a checkup of the lottery operations.

Girl Poison Victim In Serious Condition

Anna Fedyzzs, 19, of 5229 Blair street, Hazelwood, took poison in her home last night and was in serious condition in the Homeopathic Hospital today, according to a police report. Police were unable to learn any cause for the girl's action, they said.

SUSPECT HELD IN $150,000 FORGERIES

Alleged Jail Breaker Caught In Downtown Hotel; Said To Have Been Busy Here

William Hagen Harkins, 47, described by city detectives as one of the most notorious forgers in the country, was being held in Central Police Station following his capture last night in a downtown hotel.

Suspect Harkins

In the last 12 years, police said, Harkins has victimized banks throughout the country of a sum estimated by detectives at more than $150,000.

Harkins, who was being sought throughout the nation, was taken by surprise in his hotel room by private detectives who enlisted the aid of a city policeman.

The prisoner, who boasted, police said, of being able to reproduce a signature at first glance, was questioned by Police Lieut. Thomas D. Malone.

His most recent escape, from the Bridgeport (Conn.) jail, occurred several months ago, Malone said.

RAIDERS SEIZE RANKIN STILLS

Two stills, one of them in operation, an automobile and quantities of mash and moonshine, were reported confiscated last night by prohibition agents who said they raided a house in Kenmawr avenue, Rankin. Two men were arrested, the raiders said.

One of the stills was of 150-gallon capacity, the other 25-gallon. Fifteen gallons of moonshine was being loaded into a machine in the rear of the place when the raid was staged, agents said.

John Shovel, 21, of Michigan avenue, Swissvale, and Peter Schetis, 21, of 251 Fourth avenue, Rankin, were arrested, the agents reported.

2 Men Get 'Lift', Eject Autoist, Steal Car

J. L. Headley, of 508 McClintock avenue, who felt sorry for two men he saw walking in Bigelow boulevard and invited them to ride with him, early today, was forced to walk in the rain himself when one of the men drew a revolver and ordered him out of the car, police said.

Headley, according to his complaint to police, picked the men up and was forced to drive across the Bloomfield Bridge and thence to the Washington Crossing Bridge, where the men put him out. Police were seeking the men and the machine.

COUNTY DELAYS WJAS CLAIM

A claim for $10,750 damage to WJAS broadcasting station, operated by the Pittsburgh Radio Supply House, caused by blasting in the construction of Lincoln Highway, in North Fayette Township, has been held over by the County Commissioners. The state paid for the physical work and the county was responsible for damage to property.

H. J. Brennan, president of the company, said yesterday the blasting and subsequent construction work destroyed the underground wiring and necessitated construction of new towers at a cost of $3,000. He said four and one-half of the company's 12 acres were taken for the improvement. The remaining property was depreciated by an excavation for the highway which left part of the site 20 feet higher than other sections.

COUNTY LACKS GARDEN SITES

County commissioners have been advised by the Department of Public Works that all vacant county land is located on slopes and unfit for development as truck gardens.

The information was in response to resolution adopted by the commissioners asking for a report on any county owned sites that might be turned over temporarily to unemployed men and women for the growing of vegetables. A letter from the department said:

"We are of the opinion that Parkview, the county home at Woodville and the workhouse may have considerable land, but that would not be under our jurisdiction."

Flier Killed, One Hurt in Collision

MARCH FIELD, Riverside County, Cal., May 23.—(INS.)—Lieut. R. A. Murphy, Army flying instructor, was killed, and Cadet Lawrence A. Welch, of Minot, N. D., badly hurt yesterday when the airplane in which they were practicing collided with another Army ship 400 feet in the air.

Man Kills Wife, Self As Girl Looks On

EDMONTON, Alta, May 23.—(AP.)—Col. Hilleard Lyle, 52, former soldier of fortune and once a noted la crosse player, shot and killed his wife and then ended his own life in their home in Beaver Lodge, Alta., 400 miles from here. Police said the tragedy was the result of domestic trouble. Collis, a daughter of Mrs. Lyle, witnessed the tragedy.

Wife Says Husband Gambled; Divorced

Mrs. Mildred Templeton Smith Maxwell, 322 Melwood avenue, was granted a divorce from Gordon E. Maxwell, North Bessemer, by Judge Ambrose B. Reid in Common Pleas Court on the grounds of desertion. They were married December 10, 1926 and parted November 15, 1928. She testified he gambled and never took an interest in his home, being out every night.

CITY CONDEMNS 2 NORTH SIDE DWELLINGS

First Bids Asked in Drive To Raze Unsafe Houses; One Hurt as Coping Falls

Among the first houses to come down in the Bureau of Building Inspection campaign against dangerous structures will be the property at 811 Tobin street, North Side, on which bids from wrecking contractors were asked yesterday.

The property, at the rear of Monument Hill, includes two frame dwellings. Inspectors say both are vacant and in danger of falling. A survey of other such houses is being conducted by H. L. Ley, superintendent of the bureau, who has been co-operating with the Sun-Telegraph in the drive to improve housing conditions.

DANGER SHOWN

A house at 155 Mulberry way, from which a falling coping injured a workman and narrowly missed two children, is being razed by the owner. John Emery, of 846 Excelsior street, employed by the Equitable Gas Company, was reported improving from head injuries at Mercy Hospital.

Ample notice is being given to owners whose buildings are judged dangerous by inspectors. A notice is served on the owner in which 30 days grace are allowed before the building is posted. After a notice is put up, 30 more days are allowed.

OWNERS GET WARNING

Where the city is forced to take down a building, funds are appropriated by Council. The expense is then assessed against the property. All material in a building taken down by the city is piled on the premises and a fence is built around it.

Sanitary inspectors have been asked to use special diligence in reporting conditions in their districts. A number of owners have been warned to correct bad conditions.

RIPLEY LEAVES SHIP BY PLANE

NEW YORK, May 23.—(Universal.)—Robert L. Ripley was home today.

Early yesterday the creator of the famous "Believe It or Not" pictures was on the Leviathan, approaching New York, after a two and a half months' tour of Europe and Africa.

A Loening amphibian from Roosevelt Field, L. I., alighted in the placid waters near the liner off Fire Island, and a small boat put Ripley aboard it while passengers lined the rails, and a Stinson monoplane, with a Hearst Metrotone Newsreel cameraman in the cabin, droned overhead to record the event.

The artist's trip was to gather material for his pictures. He thought the most unusual sight was a city made of tin cans, housing 4,000 persons, on the outskirts of Morocco.

Railroader Faces Weapon Charge

Russell Lacock, Pennsylvania Railroad conductor of Pitcairn, will be arraigned before Alderman Thomas Flanigan Monday on a charge of carrying concealed weapons. The information was made by John Myers, of Aspinwall, a dispatcher in the Coleman yards of the railroad, who charged Lacock pointed a revolver at Myers' wife.

Power Line Employe Electrocuted at Work

TAMAQUA, Pa., May 23.—(AP.)—David Jarrett, 26, of this place, was electrocuted while working on a high tension line near here. He was an employe of the Pennsylvania Power and Light Company. A burn indicated he had thrown his arm over a live wire, fellow employes said.

Coolidge Sees Better Balance After Slump

NORTHAMPTON, Mass., May 23.

To the Editor of The Sun-Telegraph:

One of the wise men of our country told us that experience is a hard school, but some can learn from no other. In 1914 some of the nations concluded they would no longer bear what they thought were the threats and arrogance of their neighbors. Others conceived there was a short way through war to glory, aggrandizement and world power. Out of four years' mutual suffering people came to a better political understanding of international relations. They learned the wisdom of patience and forbearance. The political world is on a firmer foundation.

Mr. Coolidge

In the short era which culminated in 1929 the economic world became convinced that there was a short way to riches and power through expansion, inflation and speculation. A season of great avarice and extravagance brought the inevitable reaction of loss and suffering. Just as the political situation had to be liquidated, so the financial situation had to be liquidated. We may well be thankful it is not worse. Out of our chastening we shall emerge with less speculative and more balanced production. Economic life will be more logical and better controlled. The financial word will be on a firmer foundation.

YOUNG BANDIT ELUDES POLICE

North Side police today continued their search for the boy bandit who was more successful than in two previous attempts when he held up a chain store at 1016 Chestnut street yesterday.

The 15-year-old gunman who on Tuesday had been talked out of one holdup and routed from another, pointed a revolver at Mrs. J. Cahr, the manager, and ordered her into the cellar. The boy locked the door, rifled the cash register of $40 and escaped.

CHURCH MORAL LEADER, SAYS DR. KERR

Moderator on Assembly Eve Forecasts Action Toward Unity of Presbyterians

The church is the conscience of the nation, declared the Rev. Dr. Hugh Thomson Kerr, retiring moderator of the General Assembly of the Presbyterian Church in the U. S. A., in a special message on the eve of the opening of the one hundred and forty-third annual meeting here next Thursday. Dr. Kerr added:

"The church must not reflect, but direct, the moral and spiritual life of the people. It would be fatal if the Presbyterian General Assembly were merely to reiterate and repeat the phrases and the watchwords which are current in the ordinary political and social life of our age.

"There are on the horizon no issues to distract or divide the attention of the church from its supreme objective. If this assembly refuses to permit itself to be drawn into debate concerning the things that lie on the fringe, we will not be disappointed in our expectations.

"The Presbyterian church is not divided on any vital issue, and no man can divide it. The assembly will think more about the things that unite than the things that divide, and it will have something to say about unity in church life, and will encourage a progressive policy concerning organized church union in our American Presbyterian family."

MISSION GROUP ENTERTAINED

Delegates representing nearly 500,000 women and young people, attending a five-day biennial meeting of women's missionary organizations in the Bellefield Presbyterian Church, were to be entertained at a reception from 4 to 5 p. m. today in the Twentieth Century Club. This afternoon they were to make a motor trip through the city. Business sessions marked the morning.

The Rev. E. Graham Wilson, general secretary of the Board of National Missions of the Presbyterian Church yesterday spoke on "The Only Message for the World."

Mrs. Henry Roe Cloud, sister of "Chief" Bender, famous baseball pitcher, and wife of the president of the American Indian Institute of Wichita, Kan., spoke on "A New Day in Missions." She pleaded for retention of the mission school among Indians as an entity separate from the public schools for another decade.

One hundred and fifty delegates today were attending a four-day Home Mission Congress of the United Presbyterian church of North America, in the Fourth United Presbyterian Church, Montgomery avenue and Arch street.

The Rev. T. D. Edgar presided at the opening last night, the Rev. J. C. Broomfield, president of the conference of the Methodist Protestant church, spoke on "The New Frontier in Home Missions."

The Rev. J. M. Ross was to preside this morning, the program including talks by the Rev. W. E. McCulloch, the Rev. J. A. Alexander and the Rev. Stillman Foster. This afternoon the Rev. G. M. McKnight, the Rev. W. J. McMichael and the Rev. W. P. Aikin will speak.

Tomorrow afternoon the Rev. Clelland B. McAfee will speak on "America Against the Background of the World," with the Rev. J. C. Pinkerton presiding. In the evening the Rev. W. I. Wishart will preside; the Rev. Dr. John McNaugher will conduct services and the Rev. John McDowell will speak on "Home Missions and the Nation."

PATRICIA PITT'S SPRIGHTLY COMMENT ON PITTSBURGH'S SOCIETY HAPPENINGS

Kane Exhibit To Be Held By League

The Junior League is anticipating many visitors next week, for, beginning Monday morning and continuing until a week from tonight, the art interests department of the organization will present an exhibition of the work of John Kane, the Pittsburgh house painter, who has had entries in international art exhibits.

The exhibit will be in the clubrooms, Clark Building, like the preceding four. In the fall the league will continue its exhibits.

Mrs. John P. Hegarty, of North Craig street, and her sister, Mrs. Edna A. Mehler, of Sharon, Pa., are on a motor trip to Gettysburg and Philadelphia, where they will join Mrs. Hegarty's son, Francis Arnd Hegarty, who is a junior in Jefferson Medical School. They will all go to Atlantic City and later will be guests of the Rev. P. P. Arnd, in Elkton, Md. Miss Jean Hegarty, a junior at Mary of the Woods School, Terre Haute, Ind., returns home in June from school.

600 Attend Industry Contest

It may interest you to know that—

More than 600 persons visited the art-in-industry contest in Kaufmann's auditorium yesterday.

The bed in the Crafton Woman's exhibit was bought for 5 cents at an auction sale and restored by the club members.

The Woman's Alliance of the First Unitarian Church has 245 different articles in its "gift shop" exhibit and the exhibitors range in age from 17 to 70 years.

One of the exhibits is a lovely white cotton spread done as pick-up work by Mrs. George H. Wilson, beloved of the Alliance and the Tuesday Musical Club as well as all others who know her.

Cloth 'Armor'

In the model home which the Allegheny Valley Woman's Club has entered, the tiny smoking stand is made of a trousers button, a nail and a bolt, and the cunning four-poster bed, of clothespins.

Twenty-two women worked on the quilt displayed by the Rochester Woman's Club. They had quilting breakfasts.

Mrs. E. R. Davis, of the Carrick Mothers' Club, worked four hours and a half just featherstitching and rolling the hem around the neck of the little ring-bearer's petticoat. The ring, by the way, was made by Mrs. Robert Phillips.

The beautiful beaded bags shown by the Sloan Scholarship Club are the work of Mrs. John S. Sloan and Mrs. Walter R. Fleming and any money made from the sale of these is turned over to the club for scholarship work.

It is Mrs. W. A. Early who has made the casting flies and other fishing paraphernalia in the Scholarship Club exhibit and that she has made them for two presidents and three governors. As a girl, Mrs. Early spent two years with Samuel Allcock, the M. P. who employed the entire village of Redditch, England, in his needle, pin, fishhook and fishing rod factory, and later she went into business with her father.

Fishing Needs

Mrs. Early will demonstrate her unusual work on Monday and Tuesday at the exhibit.

Mrs. Helena Ege and Miss Dorothy Phillips wrote the very clever lines for the Cinderella puppet show which the Wilkinsburg Juniors gave yesterday afternoon.

Mrs. John M. Phillips, home department chairman of the State Federation, and chairman of the contest, says it hasn't been much work because of the splendid selfless spirit and co-operation of the women.

As an example, she cites the Bradford Woods Civic Club and the Beaver Falls Outlook, both of which gave up their original positions in the auditorium without so much as a dissenting murmur.

The judges have made their decision and it is being kept in a sealed envelope until the announcement ceremony on Wednesday morning.

Sleep is one of the very few things really essential to life, and in a sense, must be ranked ahead of water and food and next to air; if one were absolutely deprived of sleep he probably would die in about 10 days, but he would reach a state bordering upon insanity and collapse in seven or eight days, Dr. Harry M. Johnson, of Mellon Institute, said yesterday in his talk to the College Club on "The Immorality of Sleep." Dr. Johnson considered the production of sleep and its effects on health and usefulness, and he emphasized the physiological and psychological aspects of fatigue.

Talks On Sleep

He said it was man's duty, as a member of a social group, to take enough sleep, and immoral for him to take too little. Tired people often behave remarkably like drunk people, they are usually clumsy, they are careless and negligent of many important things and are often unreasonable, selfish, peevish and reckless, he stated.

Mrs. T. C. Donovan, chairman of tickets, for the Tuesday Musical Club's moonlight boat excursion Friday, is being assisted by Mrs. Charles H. Barnard, Mrs. E. B. Lee, Miss Helen Bigge, Mrs. W. L. Cunningham, Mrs. Emma Albert Dean, Miss Mildred Eller, Miss Helen Marie Greenwood, Miss Alberta Irvine, Mrs. Gladys H. Johnson, Mrs. Letha Frazier Rankin, Mrs. Lucille Miller Werner, Mrs. Jessie Yuille Yon, Mrs. Viola Byrgerson, Mrs. Rose Leader Chislett, Mrs. J. W. Claudy, Mrs. Allan Cruikshank, Mrs. Harvey S. Fouse, Mrs. Jane Lang Hervey, Mrs. Carl Hespensheide, Mrs. Henrietta Hibbard, Miss Mabel King, Mrs. Elsie Breese Mitchell, Mrs. Herbert S. Kreiling, Miss Sarah Logan, Mrs. Frank Mylor, Miss Alta Schultz, Mrs. F. H. Steele, Mrs. Gertrude S. Thomas, Mrs. Anne Woestehoff and Mrs. Lewis E. Young.

Registrations are being taken for the two-day training institute on camping, which will be held May 29 to 31 at the Dick Victor Camp, near Ellwood City, the last in a series of important activities sponsored this year by the Pittsburgh Girls' Conference.

Fay Welch, nationally known director of camping, will conduct the institute and Miss Isabel P. Kennedy will assist. Among the counsellors and faculty will be Dr. W. G. Vinal, director of the Nature Guide School of Western Reserve University; Miss Dora Einert, Frank Skalak, of Brashear Settlement, and Dr. Oscar B. Markey.

Mrs. T. M. Stahlman was elected president of the Congress of Clubs yesterday, winning over her opponent, on the independent ticket, Mrs. D. Edwin Miller, by a vote of 465 to 281. The nominating committee's entire ticket was elected as follows: Second vice president, Mrs. W. H. Francies; corresponding secretary, Mrs. H. C. Breidert; directors, Mrs. H. T. Frauenheim, Mrs. Sherman Massingham, Mrs. W. E. Morgan, Mrs. Thomas P. Otto, Mrs. Edward Rynearson and Mrs. J. E. White. Mrs. Francies won the vice presidency by a majority of 352.

Congress Elects

The returns, when announced by the chairman of tellers, Mrs. I. G. Amsler, were greeted with applause and among the first to congratulate Mrs. Stahlman was Mrs. Miller, who took her defeat like a good sportsman and pledged her erstwhile opponent her loyalty.

The voting was managed with unusual smoothness and the last vote was cast at one-quarter minute to 3. The polls closed at 3 and the tellers reported at 5:15.

Profit Shown

Every department of the Congress, with the exception of the radio, reported for the year and every one showed progress. That of the financial secretary stated a profit of $5,232 for the house.

Councilman Robert Garland spoke concerning the fireworks ordinance and urged the women's support should it come up again. Judge Sara M. Soffel and Judge William H. McNaugher also spoke, Judge Soffel's talk being largely reminiscent of earlier Congress days. Judge McNaugher spoke concerning courts. Elsie Breese Mitchell sang, accompanied by George Miller and also led assembly singing with Mrs. Lula Parker at the piano.

Then in the interim of waiting for the returns, Mrs. Mitchell and Mrs. J. Charles Wilson, both with characteristic graciousness entertained, Mrs. Mitchell singing to her own accompaniments and Mrs. Wilson reading.

MILLINERY CONTINUES TO MAKE US BROW-CONSCIOUS

Sketched in Paris

Paris Bureau, Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph.

PARIS, May 23.—The shallow note sounded in the millinery world seems to be gratifying to most women. For crowns grow more shallow by the minute and hats grow further than ever right back from the head. The great forehead exposure has made ever so many women brow-conscious and there has been a great attempt to smooth out lines and folds in an effort to present a serene and perfect forehead to the world. Then, too, with the shallow crowned, off-the-forehead hats, the whole face is thrust into very sharp relief with not always gratifying results. It has been a boon to the beauty experts and they owe the millinery moguls a rising vote of thanks. Smart are the little linen cord berets just making their appearance in the atelier of a smart house. These are ever so jaunty and smartly youthful and will most likely be seized upon by every girl in search of an ideal Summer sports model, as they are ideal for informal street wear as well as for the girl who participates in tennis or golf.

SKETCHED TODAY is a model that is most characteristic of the mode. It is a Marthe Riviere model and is in black bangkok with a shallow crown and most becoming brim. The band encircling the crown is in two parts, one half patent leather, the other, white kid. These parts are linked by being looped through a carved ring galalith. A striking black and white foulard scarf is worn to carry out the color scheme of the hat.

TWO VIEWS are presented of Lanvin's little linen cord berets. These are worn so far back on the head that they have to be held in place by a narrow forehead band of white linen ribbon. These berets come in white or bright colors to match sports ensembles or accessories and are hand-knotted in a quite open mesh.

* * *

THE LOWER SKETCH depicts a collar used with excellent effect on many Lanvin frocks. It is cowl shaped and formed entirely of narrow bias strips of organdie appliqued on a transparent organdie base and tying in front with a multitude of loose organdie strips.

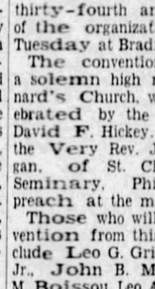
Dinner Tonight Ends Meet Of Museum Association

By PENELOPE REDD

The final sessions of the twenty-fifth annual meeting of the American Museums Association will culminate in a dinner tonight in Hotel Schenley. Dr. William J. Holland, founder of the association, will be the principal speaker. Dr. Fiske Kimball, president of the organization, will discuss museums of today.



Penelope Redd

The last of the general sessions this morning featured the use of all out-doors as a museum.

Harold C. Bryant, assistant director of the United States National Park Service, said:

"The National Park Service by means of guided trips, lectures and museum exhibits, helps the visitor to interpret park features.

"Lookouts and observation stations, nature trails and labeled exhibits in place, all have a part in the program.

"Because of this special emphasis on education out-of-doors, this park project holds a high place in the adult educational movement."

The afternoon sessions will be in charge of the Carnegie Library with Ralph Munn, director of the library, discussing the work of his department.

The final meetings yesterday, when the officials were the guests of the department of fine arts of Carnegie Institute, were devoted to an exposition of the Carnegie International by John O'Connor, Jr.; and by a series of papers dealing with the museum executive and his relations to public, staff and private collectors. Although the meeting officially concludes tonight with the anniversary dinner, the guests will be entertained at luncheon tomorrow in the Allegheny Country Club.

JOSEPH HORNE CO

NOVARRO TO SIGN AGAIN AFTER 10 YEARS WITH M. G. M.; PLANS TRIP ABROAD

Good Actor and Gentleman Is What Scribe Says Of Film Star

By HARRISON CARROLL

(Copyright, 1931, by Premier Syndicate)

HOLLYWOOD, May 23.

After 10 years at Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer, Ramon Novarro will sign another contract there the latter part of the month.

In this transient world of the cinema, that is a record. It bespeaks good faith, mutual respect and appreciation on both sides.

Once the contract is signed, Ramon will take a four-month vacation from the camera. During this time he will go to Europe and will write, at his leisure, the dialogue and screen-play of his next picture, "The Truthful Liar." This film will be completely Ramon's achievement. He wrote the story, which Thalberg already has okehed, and he will direct. Incidentally, he plans to take his company to Mexico to get genuine locations.

Ramon Novarro

As vacation nears, the star is in a mellow mood. He thinks his last picture, "The Son of India," is his best talkie to date. He also considers Madge Evans the most congenial leading woman in his career.

Ramon is the one M. G. M. star who still makes special foreign versions. Dialogue is synchronized into the other films. When "The Singer of Seville" can run a month in a single theater in Chile, the studio figures it can make an exception in Ramon's case.

Ten years have gone by since the young Mexican star made "Prisoner of Zenda" for Metro. Yet he is a bigger star today than he has ever been. He is a contradiction of many Hollywood dogmas. And that applies to his personal life, too. He is a good actor and a fine gentleman.

LATEST GOSSIP

Lew Cody tells me a story of the meanest man in the world. Last week, after a housewarming, Lew missed a platinum cigaret case, which was a gift to him from Mabel Normand. The inscription was in her own handwriting. If someone picked it up by mistake, Lew hopes they will return it. Or, he is willing to pay a reward and to ask no questions.

NEW TECH DRAMA IS PLAYED WELL

When Elizabeth Moorhead Vermorcken's novel, "Answer Before Dark," appeared as a book, it seemed to call for dramatic reincarnation. Now the author has answered the call, and the play was presented last night by the students of Tech Drama School in a way that reflected glory upon the author and double glory upon the cast, with triple glory for Helen Sisenwain, who played the role of the daughter.

Mrs. Vermorcken has adhered very closely to the novel, perhaps too closely in some respects. The dialogue is sometimes epistolary where it should be conversational. At the close there are long explanations which come as an anti-climax. But whatever points of this sort may require attention, there can be less doubt than ever of the dramatic value of this Ibsenesque story.

And it was most admirably presented by the young people of Tech. Miss Sisenwain played Mary Ann with such sincerity and naturalness that she shared the laurels with the author. Arriminta Gully did a fine bit of comedy. Clancy Cooper was very human. Leo Daschbach as the French painter showed emotion without undue stress, and Elizabeth Drake acquitted herself creditably in a role psychologically most difficult of all. Annabelle Kempton, Donn Bonhoff, Robert Gill, Burtt McKee, Raymond Neyhart, Henrietta Siskin and David Russell had the other parts—and all were smooth in their characterizations. E. W. Hickman staged the production with perfect finish. G. S.

WILL ROGERS SAYS

HOLLYWOOD, Cal., May 23.

To the Editor, Sun-Telegraph:

There is a band of mayors of American towns eating their way, free, through Europe. Well, leave it to the Los Angeles mayor to do the right thing at the right time. At a banquet given in their honor wine was served and he just did the manly thing and got up and walked out. I hope when the French mayors return the visit and we put on a couple of robberies and maybe a murder during their meal that they will have the good common decency toward their mother country to get right up and walk out, too. Yours,

Will Rogers

FULTON AND SHERIDAN HAVE ANOTHER FILM WAR

By MILDRED FILLMORE

It is the war again in both the Fulton and the Sheridan Square. The picture is titled "Beyond Victory." It is a story of men who go off to fight and of women who stay home and ask: Why?

Bill Boyd is a Louisiana planter who leaves a German girl waiting at the church, as it were. Lew Cody is a philanderer who tells a lie and lands in the army. James Gleason is the husband of a knife-throwing performer and he joins the colors to escape his wife's talents. And Russell Gleason, James' son in real life, is a farmer boy who enlists.

Mary Carr as farmer boy's mother gives the sincerest performance. The senior Gleason gets in the comedy. In the end he lands in a German hospital and even then he wants to fight. Zasu Pitts plays the knife-throwing lady. She's amusing enough, but, somehow, seems out of her element. Maybe she's tired of the war stuff, too. Husky Bill Boyd looks the hero and Marion Schilling is all right as the girl he left behind him.

The idea of "Beyond Victory" is all right, but it gets lost in all the shellfire. Four unrelated episodes are presented, as sidelines to the battle scenes.

Concert

WISE MOTHER-IN-LAW BERATES MODERNS IN STANLEY

By CLARENCE E. GRUNDISH.

"Party Husband" parties over the Stanley screen in the gin-drinking atmosphere of present day life. It has to do with a young couple and their difficulties in making a go of marriage.

The trouble is that the husband is ultra-modern and the wife is too modern. So they are out of contrast. Maybe if one or the other were old-fashioned it would be better. However, it all ends happily enough after Dorothy Mackaill and James Rennie, who are the principals, parade around in pajamas and act "mad" at each other like a couple of spoiled school children.

OH, THESE MODERNS!

The camera tells its story pretty well and Miss Mackaill is a charming actress. Helen Ware does a mother-in-law act and preaches a sermon, berating the modern generation. She says there were better drinkers and devils on the loose 20 years ago than there are today.

There are some episodes to chuckle about and the dialogue goes clever, in spots.

THE STAGE PRESENTS

Horace Heidt and his Californians are the big attraction on the stage. It's a snappy aggregation. This time the boys are back with the same old mission bells in their scenic layout and some new numbers, with the old, on their program. Lobo II, police dog, offers some variety by playing dead.

Dick Powell puts over a song and dance act, assisted by Dorothy Bushey. Mr. Powell may be a good dancer in a hundred years, but he is an okay entertainer and his little act is the fun.

Baby Rose Marie, the little radio girl, sings herself into a large hand as an added feature. Pat Haley helps Bernie Armstrong present an entertaining organ-logue and Dave Broudy puts his boys through an overture.

Plays, Players and By-Play

By WILLIAM J. LEWIS

Washday marks the beginning of the final week of the season for George Sharp and his mummers in the Alvin Theater. There will be a comedy bill on the Sixth street stage, same being "She Couldn't Say No." Mabel Kroman's smiling features will be among the features. And there'll be matinees for those who can't stand night air — Thursday and Saturday.

Small Timer says all he asks is a break but that very often the audience makes him feel his act is a bust.

The Warner screen today takes up the feminine problem of career with "Big Business Girl." Loretta Young is the answer to it, as found by Ricardo Cortez.

Small Timer says he can't conceal a thing from his wife and that she makes him feel so small as a result that she could well be called Mrs. Nothing.

"Bacheor Apartment" opens on the Harris screen today, with Lowell Sherman, Irene Dunne and Mae Murray in it. Also there'll be another chapter of "Adventures in Africa."

Small Timer, still talking about the encumbrance, says his wife is a woman of few words but she uses them often.

"Russian Love" will be offered on the Nixon stage Monday night only. It is a Yiddish operetta, which will star Leon Blank, Aaron Lebedeff and Betty Frank, supported by the original New York company. The theater box office will be open Monday.

WALTER WINCHELL On Broadway

A Columnist's Sec'y Jots Down a Few Notes

Dear W. W. I've been terribly depressed all day about Ralph Barton . . . It is not true, as the papers said, that he committed suicide because he was broke and only had $35 left . . . I get the shudders now when I think I still hear his voice on the phone of three weeks ago, when he called to have you make a record of his melting from Ruth Kresge . . . Can't understand how you got that item about Neysa McMein . . . They were celebrating their 8th ann'y only the other day. By all means, correct it . . . They are happy—after their fashion. I know dozens of pairs like that. They believe in the Fannie Hurst plan of marriage . . . Someone who said he was "Swifty" Morgan phoned to ask you to be sure and say that he has turned straight and is now selling Log Cabin and Golden Wedding Rye . . . Did you know that the benefit performance given at "Brass Ankle" the other night was for a bondsman who went crazy since the Seabury investigation started? . . . The Washington Herald runs Peggy Hopkins Joyce's stuff next to the financial page!

"Holiday," the mag, hasn't really folded—it soon will take on a new lease of life with Travel. . . I hear that Lorimer of the Sepost is considering a better job in England . . . When a man is sentenced for a long stretch in the penitentiary he isn't automatically divorced, as you said . . . The spouse must seek it . . . In the instance you cite it was probably a decision of some court, but has no basic effect . . . Reno divorces, you might item, are invalid where parties leave their own states to avoid the local requirements, and invalid on other grounds, too, but why should I ruin any lawyer's racket? . . . Some of the celebrated actresses who are indorsing certain advertised things "admit" their "real" ages . . . Yeah? . . . It would be comical to compare their advertised ages with those given in Who's Who.

Is it true that Harry Richman is very ill in Chicago? Two people called to ask. . . . Bee Palmer, I hear, is getting richer because she made the publishers of "Please Don't Talk About Me When I'm Gone" declare her in on one-third of the royalties. . . . Seems she suggested the idea to the writers. . . . By all means see the newsreel closeup of the Derby; very exciting. . . . It is the first time the lens boys caught the steeds going all around the track. . . . Lew Leslie wants you to come and see "Rhapsody in Black" again, particularly the new scene where the choir hymns "St. James Infirmary." . . . The frames for the new pictures come to $7.75; please leave check, they'll be here today. . . . Don't feel bad about learning that they've fired the kid in the mailing room for swiping theater tickets. . . . They've been wondering just who it was all along. . . . Other mail has been looted.

I hear that the brokers have made a 16-week "buy" on "Band Wagon" already . . . Oh, I knew I had something for you . . . Remember those four vacant seats in Row J at the "Crazy Quilt" opening? . . . Well, they were paid for, but the lad who bought them is in the Tombs . . . One of the show-offs; you know the type? . . . Who is always putting up a front for the cuties . . . They finally nabbed him and there isn't a chance that he will get less than 20 years . . . A bond-thief . . . You should have remained for the grand dance number, with Phil Baker accordioning away up on a high stool with a dim light on him . . . It is swell . . . They asked me why you left and I told them you had to—to make the last edition . . . You might tell the ladies that if they want their hair like Jean Harlow—there is a new platinum dye on the market . . . And once dyed the hair remains that shade . . . Where did you hide the aspirin?

There was a lunatic in today who distracted everybody with his yelling . . . He demanded that you retract an insult, as he called it . . . When I finally cooled him down, he showed me the clipping, which was from our 42d St. neighbor, the dope! . . . Have you noticed the newest panhandler on Broadway? . . . He plays the theater crowds between acts on the sidewalks, and wears a panama hat, fancy ties, and smokes the best cigars? . . . Your rave on Margaret Sullavan in the review of "Modern Virgin" has me curious to see her . . . I hear she is very pretty . . . Will you ask Mr. Greneker to leave me a pair? . . . I saw your friend Claire Brokaw last night—very lovely. . . . Norman Anthony is telling the craziest joke around . . . He says he overheard two kids arguing. One said: "My father is now a Broadway columnist like your father, so there!" . . . "Well, I'll betcha my father is And the other brat replied worse than your father!!!" . . . The Atlantic City Express now goes at 2:35 (3:35 to you) instead of 3:15 . . . I reserved your chair.

Here's a chuckle . . . Three ex-editors, H. A. Bittner (Argosy), Anthony M. Bud (Adventure) and Eugene Clancy (War Stories), tried to sell their own stuff . . . Now they have an agency to teach amateurs how to sell to magazines . . . Did you hear how poor Grant Clarke died? . . . He went to see a fellow he had befriended, who just came out of jail . . . The fellow gave him a drink of hooch and Grant toppled over cold . . . Here's something peculiar—Fiswoode Tarleton was killed in a motor crash in the South and no New York paper carried the distinguished writer's passing . . . Did you see the crack Nancy Carroll took at you in a Paramount house organ? . . . Ask Mary Nolan to tell you about a shyster movie producer who makes independent releases—who gypped her out of plenty, as well as several other actors . . . Have you heard the wild report making the rounds about the plane that killed Rockne? . . . Remind me when you come in.

A girl whose name is Madelyn Mack and who says she was in the movietone at Warner's with you, called . . . Wishes you would say she has quit clerking at Saks Fifth to give Broadway an argument, again . . . A "small intellectual circle," as it names itself, would welcome additional members "inclined toward mysticism, paganism and the study of cultural curiosa" (whatever that is!) . . . A chap named J. Grimm, at 36 Park Ave., is in charge. Sounds naughty, huh? . . . Paul Swineheart called. Said that Time, the mag, phoned him about his statement of six months ago that "within six months you would be bumped off." . . . And that the voice asked him what he had to say about it, now that the time had expired . . . So Willard Keefe said: "Maybe they've taken an option?" . . . A Tom Miner wants to see you regarding the play, "Blessed Event" . . . No vacation for you, they said, unless you can deliver two weeks' columns in advance . . . Juggle around with that for a while, old boy!

I have a dandy new trick for you . . . One of my friends wised me up to it . . . And convinced me that it works every time! . . . When you expect a phone call from a nuisance, and I'm not in, and you do not want to let him know you're in, simply keep the mouthpiece of the phone stuffed with a handkerchief . . . You can talk in your natural voice, which penetrates the kerchief, but the voice is entirely disguised! . . . Isn't that marvelous? . . . If you don't think your name is a household word then take a peek at the clipping on your desk from the editorial page of the Los Angeles Times, which says: "That New York columnist, Robert Winchell" . . . Teehee and a trio of ha-ha-ha's! . . . R. C.

MORE GANGSTERS ARE PUT ON THE SPOT IN 'CITY STREETS'

By GEORGE SEIBEL

Beer is the blood that foams in the veins of the Muses nowadays. You can see what prohibition has done to literature and art in the picture at the Penn Theater this week. It is a fine picture, called "City Streets," but what is it about? Beer! Who is the hero? A gangster! Who is the heroine? A moll! Who is the villain? The big shot!

George Seibel

Every other picture now is about racketeers who carry rods and plant pineapples. "City Streets" is thrilling and it is artistic. The scenario is by Dashiell Hammett, who writes about the best mystery tales now on tap. And the stage direction is by Rouben Mamoulian, who was one of the Theater Guild's big brewmasters. Now they have worked together to make a gangster picture for the screen. That's what the Eighteenth Amendment has done to the drama.

BEER WITH A KICK

But this beer has a kick. Mamoulian has copied the methods of the German and Russian movies. He provides vivid impressionistic flashes. As a picture it's good.

As a story it's also good. Of course it's the same old stuff. The Big Shot wants the other guy's moll. He gets a first-class funeral. Gary Cooper wasn't attendant in a shooting gallery for nothing. That's where Sylvia Sidney, the beer baron's daughter, met him. For a change they go down to the beach and watch the foam on the big waves. Those beach pictures are good. The brewery pictures are also high in percentage. Goodbye to knights and sheiks! Volstead has left them out of his reckoning.

MAY MUSIC FESTIVAL

In the stage show they are having a May music festival in the junior grade with harmonica champions as troubadours. Full of fun and harmony. Dick Leibert plays "Pop Eye the Sailor Man" and lets the audience sing into the mike to find new talent. The Three Gobs do some of the fastest dancing—and in the finale even the skyscrapers of Manhattan dance. Seeing is believing—they turned on their foundations—or was it the beer in "City Streets"?

The keynote of the stage show is musical, though the Chester Hale Girls turn brown, blue and purple as they dance. It's a contest between Victor Herbert, presented by the symphony orchestra, and the harmonica gang, led by Borrah Minevitch.

More Fun

Marion Davies has another amusing comedy role in "It's a Wise Child," showing on the Aldine screen.

'SIX-CYLINDER LOVE' DAVIS AND ENRIGHT FUN FILM

By MARGARET RUSSELL

"Six Cylinder Love" only hits on four cylinders at the Davis and Enright Theaters this week. An old story dressed up in new clothes. Turtle-dove newly-weds try to keep up with the Joneses. A 1927 Ford is traded in for a snappy Lincoln.

Evenings at the fireside give way to a trail of night clubs. The loving groom mortgages the rose-covered cottage to pay the bills. When he gets in beyond his depth he "borrows" money from his employer and almost goes to jail.

Things look bad for "honey" and "baby" for a while, but El Brendel steps in and saves the day. The cast includes Spencer Tracy, Sidney Fox, Edward Horton, William Collier, Sr., and Una Merkel.

"Don't Divorce Him," a Tuxedo talking comedy with Clyde Cook, a Ripley "Believe It or Not" and Pathe News complete the program at the Davis. The Davis will be closed Thursday afternoon to prepare for the Pennsylvania premiere of "The Public Enemy" at 8 o'clock Thursday night.

P. R. R. to Cut Cliff At Scene of Wreck

The Pennsylvania Railroad is planning to cut down the cliff at Edgecliff, a boulder from which caused the derailment of the Buffalo Flier locomotive yesterday, when Engineer L. H. Hillgrove, of Dormont, was scalded to death. G. M. Sixsmith, division superintendent, said guards also had been stationed there.

The locomotive was derailed when a 10-ton boulder rolled down the cliff and onto the tracks just before the passenger train arrived.

'IT'S A WISE CHILD' HILARIOUS FILM IN ALDINE

By WILLIAM J. LEWIS

Hilarious comedy is the contribution of the Aldine screen to the gayety of the world in the present week of grace. The vehicle whereby it is supplied is "It's a Wise Child," the sophisticated stage play that has been modified in the film so that the angle of casual maternity is suggested rather than boldly proclaimed, as it was in the stage version. In it Marion Davies again proves that she is at the top in the depiction of light characterizations that combine alluring feminine charm with a humorous quality that is both whimsical and winsome.

Although the original story has been altered somewhat, with changes that make it less offensive, combined with elaboration of scene, the main thread of the tale is adhered to and the original funny situations remain, with the addition of others.

There also are two additional characters. One is Annie, the maid, who in the play is talked about a great deal but never is seen. Another is a sister of Banker Appleby, a gossip whose suspicious nature is the cause of implications that bring difficulties to the heroine, difficulties she causes by her own fibs in the stage comedy.

The story revolves around a girl who is engaged to a wealthy man much older than herself, who breaks the engagement when she finds she is in love with one of the clerks in his bank. It is a far-reaching decision, for before the happy fade-out, all of the members of her family, two maids, an iceman, a lawyer and her new fiance are actively and most amusingly involved.

Sidney Blackmer plays the lawyer chap, in whose arms Joyce, played by Miss Davies, finds welcome peace at the finale. James Gleason is as tough as they make 'em as Cool Kelly, the iceman. Johnny Arthur is a sappy cousin-in-law with wife-trouble. Lester Vail makes a nice-looking unheroic hero. Polly Moran plays the dumb maid, Bertha, and Mary Prevost, plenty plump now, is the maid, Annie. Emily Fitzroy, Ben Alexander, Robert McWade and Clara Blandick complete the cast.

Kerr Plans 30-Year Issue of City Bonds

City Controller James P. Kerr announced today he would issue $2,250,000 bonds to liquidate damage claims on street improvement projects. The bonds, carrying 3¾ per cent interest, will be for the usual 30-year period. Previously Kerr had considered 10-year bonds, but decided on 30-year securities when the best interest rate obtainable was 3¾ per cent.

CLARA BOW, GRIEVING FOR MOTHER, GOES TO HOLLYWOOD

MEDIOCRE FILM GIVES START TO FAME

Leaves Father in N. Y. to Make Pictures on Coast; Wins Aid of Director

Herewith the Sun-Telegraph presents the sixth chapter of the REAL life story of Clara Bow by Louella O. Parsons. The biographer of the red-haired, rollicking, devil-may-care screen star is revealing the fascinating story of Miss Bow's life. Miss Parsons handles her subject with a wealth of understanding and reveals a new Clara Bow that the world knows nothing of.

CHAPTER VI.

Happy in the thought that she had made a success on the screen, Clara went to Coney Island, with Willie. She went to the movies with him also and one day he asked her to go to a party that some of the young people were giving.

Clara, in telling me about this moment, said:

"I was never so thrilled in my life. I had never had a real pretty dress—I had always worn such cheap, pitiful clothes. But Elmer Clifton paid me enough for my work in his picture so that I could buy a dress that was not just a miserable 98-cent model. My mother, at the time, was very ill, but she had been sick so long I couldn't believe it was anything serious. I went to the party with Willie. I wore my new dress. I never had such a grand time—life was wonderful. There was gayety, dancing and lots of boys and girls of my own age.

"I was just in the midst of all these festivities when my father came to the door. 'Your mother,' he gasped, very white, 'you'd better come with me, dear.'

"I followed him blindly through the dark streets of Brooklyn, scarcely knowing where we went.

"'Mother! Mother!' I cried. 'What does this mean!'

"I found her lying still, white, unable to recognize me. Poor, fragile soul—beautiful even in death. Poor unhappy mother.

"'I won't go into the movies,' I cried, 'if you don't want me to, mother! I won't ever do anything you won't want me to if you'll just come back to us, mother!'

Mother Dies

"But she was so still, white, and so unresponsive. She couldn't answer me. 'I'll give it all up,' I cried to my father. 'She didn't want me to go into the movies. I love her. I can't live without her!'

"My father gently took me in his arms and comforted me, saying, 'She has gone home—but I know that now she will understand that motion pictures are your career.'

"I felt when she died there was a hole in my life that could never be filled. I could never be the same. I changed overnight from a little girl to a woman. If only I had had enough money to buy her the things she wanted!"

As I said before, happiness and joy are always associated in this little girl's life. She had no more recovered from the shock of losing her beloved mother than she was given a part in "Grit," opposite Glenn Hunter, who at that time was a popular juvenile on the New York stage.

"Grit" may not have done much for Clara to help her as an actress, but it later was an important event in her life. First and foremost because it brought her to the attention of B. P. Schulberg and J. G. Bachman, heads of the Independent Preferred Pictures, and, secondly, because it cemented a friendship with Frank Tuttle, her director, which has lasted through the years.

California Beckons

B. P. Schulberg, who was already established in the old Mission studio in Los Angeles, sent word to his partner, J. G. Bachmann, to send Clara to California. Clara had never been farther away than New Bedford in her life. The prospect of traveling in a de luxe Pullman train was like some dream come true. She had so often seen the trains steaming out of the station carrying passengers to some far away country.

She was thrilled. J. G. Bachmann advanced her enough of her salary to buy herself a simple traveling suit and the necessities for the long trip across the continent.

It was just one day before the happy little girl was to set forth on her first long train trip that I had luncheon with her in the Chinese restaurant. She was wearing a fraternity pin on her blouse, which Willie had given her.

"A boy friend of Willie's gave it to him," she confided to me, "and maybe some day I will marry him."

Four years later, Clara told me that she had never really loved Willie.

"I never knew what love meant until I met Gilbert Roland," she said.

Leaves Father

The separation from her father was harder than Clara expected. They clung to each other and wept. Robert Bow, who had watched over the little girl with both a mother's and father's devotion, feared to have her go so many miles away from home. He had heard of Hollywood, and he was afraid that Clara, alone in a strange town, would miss his protection.

J. G. Bachmann, who signed the contract with Clara, assured her father that she would be all right. Clara was put in the care of Maxine Alton, an agent, who was to chaperon her across the continent. Of Miss Alton, B. P. Schulberg speaks well, but Robert Bow says he has wished every day of his life that Clara had never met her.

Miss Alton was sophisticated. She knew the world. Clara was young, innocent, eager for life and the knowledge it held.

"She took my little girl to Hollywood with her. They rented an apartment on Hollywood boulevard called the Hillview Apartments. Clara was to send for me," Robert Bow told me, "but days went by and nothing was said about my coming to Hollywood. I was lonesome—my wife had died and I wanted my little girl. I finally insisted on coming West and joining her.

"'Let's get a bungalow and live together.'

"Clara, who always wanted to do the things that I asked her to do, agreed. We went to live in a little bungalow and we were very happy. Clara was making great headway in her pictures. I was happy to see that the tragedy of her childhood was leaving her, that she was making new friends, new associates. Just at this time, Clara met the only son of a millionaire. He paid her court. He showered her with gifts. He took her to places that she had never been before in her life. She mingled with new friends who belonged to a different stratum of life from that to which she had been accustomed. Clara, some years later, told me that much as she enjoyed being a guest at these festivities, she didn't love the young millionaire. She realized it was only friendship which she had felt toward Willie and it certainly wasn't love."

Tomorrow Miss Parsons describes the first of the tempestuous romances which have marked the life of the rollicking, impulsive "It" girl of the screen. Clara is headed for stardom, and for the first time become a real factor in her career.

CLARA BOW, A FILM STAR AT PLAY . . . AS A BROOKLYN KID SHE NEVER DREAMED OF THIS

Director's Praise

Frank Tuttle, in speaking of the young Clara, who had not yet met Hollywood, said:

"Her emotions were close to the surface. She could cry upon demand, opening the floodgate of tears almost as soon as I asked her to weep. She was dynamic, full of nervous energy and vitality and pitifully eager to please everyone.

"I never once," Mr. Tuttle continued, "saw her sit down. She would disappear day after day. One day I followed her and saw her playing leap frog and tag on the bank of the East River with a boy 13 years old."

This lad, now grown up, is William Janney, who played Mary Pickford's brother in "Coquette." At that time he was doubling for Glenn Hunter and he looked upon Clara as his playmate. The other grownups were too busy to notice him.

The 17-year-old Clara was not particularly interested in the many men who cast longing eyes in her direction. She loved to dance and her favorite recreation in those days was to go dancing with some one of the Brooklyn lads of her acquaintance.

"But," said Frank Tuttle, "no matter how hard she danced the night before, she would always be on the set at 8 o'clock the next morning, fresh, bright and smiling."

Unheeded Challenges

By ARTHUR 'BUGS' BAER

It's almost time for the civilian training camps. We never thought we would be homesick for the army. But we think we will join a civvie outfit.

Provided they make us a good offer. And we say right here the offer has to be better than the one Gen. Pershing made us in 1918.

He really made it in 1917. But we're giving you the date of acceptance.

The reason we're homesick for the army is because we want to do sentry duty.

That sounds strange. Because we don't like sentry duty.

But we want to do it in order to stop somebody. In four months' sentry duty in Camp Zachary Taylor in Kentucky, we never stopped anybody.

We challenged them all right. We yelled "Halt" in every dialect. From dusk to dawn we kept the welkin cracking with the command to stop flat-footed traffic. But nobody ever stopped at our challenge.

It got to be quite an Army scandal. Gen. Snow would ask Col. Carter:

"Did Bugs stop anybody last night?"

"Nope," he'd reply. "Out of 67 challenges nobody accepted."

The answer to the whole thing was that we were not the kind of a sentry that commanded respect.

Trespassers in the night would pause all right. But only long enough to take a kick at us. It may have been the fact that they never trusted us with a gun. We had a broomhandle with a trigger on it.

We never could stop a nocturnal slinker long enough to go through the manual of military conversation a sentry is supposed to spill on a stranger in the camp.

Everybody, even our allies in Kentucky, admitted that we walked our post in soldierly manner, keeping constantly on the alert and observing everything that went on within sight or hearing.

But nobody ever stopped for us. And that's why we think we will take a course in the civilian camps this summer. We might be able to stop a civvie before he gets to be a soldier.

Steel Discord Shown At Institute

By GEORGE H. SNYDER

ALL WAS NOT PEACE and light at the semi-annual meeting of the American Iron and Steel Institute held in New York yesterday. In the past the leaders of the steel industry were noted for their optimistic predictions and the spirit of harmony which prevailed at their meetings. The gathering yesterday was significant because the steel men talked turkey for the first time in many years.

James A. Farrell

James A. Farrell, president of the United States Steel Corporation, in speaking of the wage and price policies of his competitors, said:

"I think it's a pretty cheap sort of business.

"You say wages have been stabilied in the steel industry. They have not. We are living in a fool's paradise. Honeycombing and pinching of all sorts of things have gone on. It's a shame that when some of the large companies are trying to maintain wages, others are cutting them even when they are affording only three-day-a-week employment."

Charles M. Schwab, president of the institute and chairman of the board of Bethlehem Steel Corporation, also made a plea for the stabilization of wages and prices but took a far more cheerful attitude towards the subject than the Steel Corporation head.

Mr. Schwab declared that steel employes have enjoyed a stable wage scale for 12 years and asserted that the time is past when the industry is selling its goods for less than cost.

Mr. Farrell sharply contradicted Mr. Schwab when he said that wage cutting is actually under way and insisted that he did not see any hope for better prices until the presidents of the steel companies stop the present diabolical situation.

Wasting Material

IN HIS COMMENTS on prices Mr. Farrell charged the industry with wasting millions of tons of raw material and getting no return. He declared that the industry is not selling steel but is accepting the prices the consumers are willing to pay. He asked that the industry set up resistance against the reasoning that, as production goes down, prices should get cheaper.

In making this protest against the tactics of the steel industry Mr. Farrell was voicing a lament of steel executives which has been given public expression only in the recent depression. The United States Steel Corporation has always been the last organization to cut prices. For years it has been attempting to maintain the level of quotations in the face of constant price cutting by independents.

Wages Cut

THE PRESENT SITUATION has been made even more acute by the fact that some of the wage cutting organizations have been passing the savings in their operating costs on to consumers in prices, making it increasingly difficult for the companies trying to keep the compensation of workers on a higher level.

The cutting of wages has been under way for a period of several months. It started with some of the smaller independents and has spread to larger organizations in recent weeks.

INSURANCE FIRM TO DEDICATE NEW HOME

Political, Civic, Religious Leaders Plan to Attend Ceremony Next Wednesday

More than 2,000 invitations have been sent to stockholders, civic, political, religious and financial leaders in Pittsburgh to attend next Wednesday morning the official opening and dedication of the new home office of the Knights Life Insurance Company at Ridge and Galveston avenues. The dedication exercises will begin at 10 a. m. with a presentation of keys of President Joseph H. Reiman by Joseph C. Hungerman, chairman of the building committee.

The new home office is the former William Penn Snyder residence which was purchased last fall. Judge James B. Drew, husband of Snyder's only daughter, will speak at the dedication. Other prominent speakers will be: Thomas M. Dunn, president of the Pittsburgh Chamber of Commerce; John C. Hill, president of the Standard Life Insurance Company; Charles F. Armstrong, state insurance commissioner at Harrisburg, and A. W. Duff, president of the Edward A. Woods Agency.

Representatives of the North Side Chamber of Commerce, the East North Side Business Men's Association, the Twenty-seventh Ward Board of Trade, the Bellevue and West View Boards of Trade, the Congress of Women's Clubs and various other organizations will be present.

The Knights Life Insurance Company was organized 14 years ago. At the second annual meeting of the supreme directorate of the Knights of St. George, held at St. Augustine Hall, Thirty-seventh street, a resolution authorizing the appointment of a committee on juvenile and whole life family insurance was adopted on May 24, 1914. From a humble beginning with a personnel of about eight men, the company has grown to include more than 400 representatives with district offices in Greensburg, Johnstown, Altoona, Scranton, Erie, Harrisburg, Philadelphia, Rochester, Connellsville, Allentown and Mt. Carmel.

In the last 12 years insurance in force in the industrial department has increased from over $2,000,000 to $32,000,000. In the ordinary department, the increase has been from $237,500 to over $14,000,000.

SCHOOL GRANTS SCHOLARSHIPS TO TEN

Accountancy Awards Go To Graduates From Local High Schools

The Pittsburgh School of Accountancy has just awarded scholarships valued at $2,500 to 10 qualified graduates from high schools in and around Pittsburgh. Annually candidates are recommended by principals from various high schools. These boys are interviewed by the school's scholarship committee and 10 are selected who, in the committee's opinion, are best qualified to receive the awards, which are granted on the basis of grades, adaptibility, general fitness and financial need.

The scholarship includes all tuition charges for the freshman year, except textbooks and supplies, and enables the pupil to study business administration under the supervision of Pittsburgh School of Accountancy's faculty comprised of approximately 35 certified public accountants and members of the Pennsylvania bar.

These scholarships also make the students eligible for practical assignment, a feature which permits advanced pupils to practice in downtown offices theory learned in the classroom.

Following is a list of the 10 students awarded scholarships: H. E. Brunk, George Westinghouse High School; James Maloney, D. B. Oliver High School; Gerard Malloy, Monaca High School; Clarke Gallagher, Bridgeville High School; Daniel Fulkerson, New Castle High School; Edwin Swingenstein, Bellevue High School; Jack Miller, Wilkinsburg High School; Duwaine Thomas, New Brighton High School; Wayne Todd, Beaver High School, and John Jula, Findley Vocational School, Imperial.

Shanghai Silver Stocks Unchanged

WASHINGTON, May 23.—Silver stocks in Shanghai on May 14 totaled 190,100,000 taels, of which 139,000,000 taels were held in native banks, says a radiogram to the Department of Commerce. The corresponding figures for May 7 were 190,000,000 and 138,200,000 taels.

Sycee and silver bars were valued at 84,000,000 taels on May 14, the same as on May 7. The actual number of silver dollars in Shanghai on May 14 was 146,200,000, as compared with 145,400,000 on May 7.

QUIET WEEK IN GLASS TRADE

Marketing conditions in the several branches of the flat glass industry held along quiet lines in the past week, according to American Glass Review.

In plate glass, both production and shipments were holding at substantially unchanged levels and the same holds true of the rolled glass branch. Demand for window glass was less active than last week when an improvement in orders was reported by leading factors.

Distribution of plate glass, while in some lighter volume than earlier in the month, is holding up fairly well due to the rather substantial business still being received from the automobile industry. The situation in this branch, despite the subnormal seasonal demand, is fairly satisfactory and continues appreciably better than in other sections of the flat glass market. Production of this product, as for some weeks past, is about in line with trade requirements and the market is firm.

Electric Company Plans Refunding

NEW YORK, May 23.—Pennsylvania Electric Company has issued $6,000,000 of first and refunding mortgage bonds series F, due 1971, for the purpose of refunding a similar principal amount of 4½s due 1970.

LOCAL RETAIL TRADE GAINS

Retail trade has been stimulated to some extent by warmer weather and there has been considerable buying of seasonal wearing apparel, particularly in women's and children's lines. Men's apparel lines have been slightly more active this week with the demand for straw hats showing a good increase, according to R. G. Dun & Co.'s weekly Review.

Some lines of electrical merchandise are moving fairly well, with electrical refrigerators showing increased demand. Crude oil production shows a slight reduction, and prices continue to show an easier tendency. Bituminous coal production continues at a rate approximately 20 per cent lower than a year ago, with demand slow and prices showing no particular change.

No particular improvement is apparent in the collection situation of either jobbers or retailers.

Siam to Exchange Silver for Gold

WASHINGTON, May 23.—Surplus silver currency, which has accumulated in the Siamese treasury with the increasing use of paper money, is to be disposed of and gold or gold exchange securities are to be purchased with the proceeds, according to the terms of an amendment to Siam's currency act, the Commerce Department is informed.

DISTRIBUTION COST ASSAILED

Increased cost of distribution is forcing six men to sell what four men produce, Shirley E. Haas, of Louisville, told the Pittsburgh Association of Manufacturers' Representatives yesterday at a luncheon in the Fort Pitt Hotel.

The probability of a retail merchandise survey for Pittsburgh was discussed. Success of a similar survey in Louisville was related by Haas. D. C. Montgomery, of the Department of Commerce, Washington, also addressed the luncheon.

ALLEGHENY COUNTY
"Public Improvements Promote Progress"
The Glassport-Elizabeth Road, located in Glassport Borough and Lincoln Township, is a reconstruction of a deteriorated stretch of roadway bordering the Monongahela River and extending to the Glassport approach to the Glassport-Clairton Bridge, for a distance of 1.42 miles. This road, as all roads paralleling the rivers, is a heavily traveled road, due to its generally low grades.
The pavement on the new road consists of reinforced concrete, 9 inches thick at the edges, 7 inches at center, and is 20 feet wide.
This contract was awarded to F. W. Scott on September 25, 1930, the contract price being $124,459.00. The work will be completed about the first of July, and the source of funds for this improvement was the 1928 Peoples Bond Issue.

RECREATION

Pittsburgh not only has 1,686 acres of public parks, but the usual supply of amusement parks, such as West View and Kennywood. In Highland Park is a splendid public zoo; while in Schenley Park are the wonderul free Phipps Conservatory and Carnegie Free Library, Museum, Art Gallery and Music Hall. Free concerts are given in this hall every Saturday evening and Sunday afternoon during the fall, winter and spring; and in the Music Hall of the North Side Carnegie Library free concerts are given on Sundays during the same seasons. Free ball grounds, tennis courts, swimming pools, and golf courses abound throughout the city. In Greater Pittsburgh there are nearly thirty golf and country clubs. In the summer season there are band concerts and out-door movies in the public parks.

The Pittsbrugh Athletic Association and the Keystone Athletic Club each has a very large and beatuiful clubhouse whose value runs into the millions.

STEEL TO SHOW GAIN AFTER JULY

Seasonal Influences and Possible General Trade Spurt to Cause Upturn

By B. E. V. LUTY

That there will be increasing steel production after July is altogether probable, for there are strong seasonal influences, indicated by precedent, to bring about an increase, while in addition there are chances of general business having such an improvement as would make a visible impress on steel demand. The clearest showing along that line is made by freight car loadings, which have turned distinctly upward since early April, after adjustment is made for usual seasonal variation.

It would, however, require a very marked improvement to give the steel industry a really fair operating rate, say 60 or 65 per cent, for if July were as high as 60 per cent an increase of one-half would be merely to 60 per cent and the average of the second half of the year would be far under 60 per cent.

A distinct increase in demand for standard or merchant pipe is reported for the last couple weeks, this being a belated seasonal increase, and some further increase may be expected. There are increases in some other lines, as in steel for road building, including culvert stock, strips and mesh. Sheets and nails can easily have some increases, for building purposes, as the volume of demand lately has been very light. There can hardly be a decrease in line pipe production, which has been decidedly light in the last few weeks, and there can easily be a substantial increase.

In four lines steel has been slipping or is about to slip, with respect to automobiles, rails, fabricated structural steel and tin plate. It is conceded on all hands that this month is representing the peak of automobile production, the sixth month of successive increases, June production to be lighter, but how much lighter depends largely on the Ford program, which is not known.

Rail specifications have been decreasing somewhat of late and nearly all the requirements of the roads for this year's replacements will have been filled by the end of next month. This is in accordance with the usual experience. The whole rail movement has been lighter than in other years.

Fabricated structural steel lettings held up remarkably well during the first eight months of last year, showing but a small drop from 1929. Then lettings began to fall off. When it is a matter of gauging total steel production the statistics of shipments of the structural fabricating shops are the better index. They have been decreasing more or less continuously since September. January was somwhat under December and subsequent decreases made the rate in the three weeks, ended May 2, 19 per cent under the rate of shipping in December.

TWO LOSE FIGHT TO CHEAT CHAIR

WILKES-BARRE, Pa., May 23.—(AP.)—Convicted of first degree murder as the payroll bandits who dynamited a Glen Alden Coal Company pay car, killing four men, on the mountainside near Warrior Run, January 13, 1930, Sigismund "Big Joe" Szachewicz, of Wilkes-Barre, and John "Tex" Nafus, of Plymouth Township, have lost their final hope of escaping death in the electric chair Monday, barring a last hour stay by the Governor. Judges W. S. McLean and W. A. Valentine yesterday refused to grant the defendants new trials on the strength of after-discovered evidence.

Ex-Legion Official Guilty in Fund Theft

PONTIAC, Mich., May 23.—(AP.)—Willis M. Brewer, a former national vice commander of the American Legion, was convicted yesterday of embezzling $2,500 from the legion orphan's billet at Otter Lake, Mich.

BUY AND HOLD IDEA SEEMS DOUBTFUL

Economic Structure Now Lends Self to Speculation Rather Than Investment

By MERRYLE S. RUKEYSER
Universal Service.

NEW YORK, May 23.—The severe deflation, through which the world has been passing, has lowered the prestige of the ostrich school of investments.

The ostrich school advised the thrifty to buy good securities and hold on to them. The advice seems especially questionable at this low ebb in the economic cycle, though on the average in good times and poor through the years it is likely to seem somewhat better.

Mr. Rukeyser

In a stable, economic society, the doctrine of fixity of investment procedure, irrespective of the vicissitudes of the market place, would be more suitable. But, whether we like it or not, we are living in a highly unstable, dynamic economic society, which lends itself more to the purpose of speculation than to sedate investment. As long as business and the market place are subject to violent ups and downs, the large opportunities will go to those who know how to shift their positions adroitly. The social evil of inflation and deflation lies in the fact that it favors speculators and penalizes investors.

Striking a note of realism, Samuel Crowthers points out:

"Every year one reads the estimates of how much money is annually lost through buying fake stocks, but never yet has there been a calculation of how much money has been lost through the fine, conservative advice: 'If you want to get rich, buy sound stocks that have been paying dividends long enough to be seasoned. Buy them outright, lock them up and some day you will be rich.'

EXAMPLES NUMEROUS

"The advice is perfectly good and no end of examples can be cited to support it. But an equally fine lot of examples can be cited to show quite the contrary—that the surest way to the poorhouse is to select seasoned, dividend-paying common stocks and forget about them."

Eternal vigilance is the price of prudent investment.

During and after the war, thrifty Europeans lost their nest eggs on low coupon bonds. Russian and Turkish obligations are classic examples. And, in the revaluation of French, Belgian and Italian currencies, there were huge real losses to investors in government obligations.

Road Construction Sets High Record

WASHINGTON, May 23.—More than 300 miles of all concrete roads were built in Great Britain during 1930, constituting a new record for any one year. Advices to the Commerce Department say the increase is accounted for not only by country and municipal work, but also by private street work and estate development.

Real Estate

Two building lots each fronting 60 feet on Perry highway, Wellington Heights plan, and extending back a distance of 150 feet, have been sold by the Wellington Heights Land Company to M. A. Roessau, builder.

The purchaser, according to officials of the land company, will immediately break ground for the construction of two large homes to cost approximately $20,000 each.

SELL LOT

Another lot in the same plan fronting on Montclair avenue has been sold by the same company to F. W. Beckert. The lot adjoins a new home which Beckert recently acquired.

A row of six-room houses, 512-14-16-18-20-22-24-26 Landeiss street, has been sold by the Scott Mortgage Company for $6,000 each, according to the Finance Realty Company, brokers in the sale.

The purchasers are J. Brown, Peter Unatin, Bella Zeman, L. Lawson Gondelman, A. Steinberg, Esther Black, Bessie Steinberg and Ida Schmidt.

An improved property in Franklin street, McKeesport, has been conveyed by Oliver M. Penrod from H. G. Gibson for a consideration of $7,125. The lot measures 50x120 feet.

The Sears, Roebuck home construction service office, formerly in the Jenkins Arcade, has been moved to the Century Building.

The Willow Terrace Development Company has transferred to Louis Baldizar, a lot in the Willow Terrace plan for $1,750.

PURCHASE HOME

A new nine-room brick house with three baths and garage, 531 Glen Arden drive, Clover Crest, has been sold for Albert J. Gloeckler to Wadsworth Doster, by the Kelly-Wood Real Estate Company, East End. The lot measures 40x112 feet.

Applications for building permits follow:

Alaska Juneau Moves To New High Ground On Heavy Buying

While other shares have been declining Alaska Juneau has been moving into new high territory. This reflects steady accumulation by interests who are impressed with the good earnings recorded by the company this year. Several big traders who have been bearish on the general list have purchased Alaska Juneau as a hedge and profits accumulated in both directions. In some quarters it is reported that there has been some buying for the account of the company.

Quite a few of the shorts in Westinghouse Electric have been covering part of their short obligations in the past two days. This buying has come when the stock has been inclined to sag. The demand is due to the announcement that the company operated at a profit in April, which is decidedly better than the previous months of the current year. Conditions in the business made economies necessary which are now benefiting the company.

For the 12 months ended March 31, last, Columbia Gas and Electric reported earnings of $1.59 a share on its stock. Because of this, there has been some talk in the financial district regarding the maintenance of the $2 a share annual dividend rate. However, in quarters usually well informed, it is contended that the rate will be maintained for the time being and until the 1932 business prospects can be judged more accurately.

Union Pacific earnings for the year ended April 30 are equal to about $14 a common share. The road earned $15.63 a share on outstanding $222,293,100 common in 1930. Considering the strong financial position of the company, there should be little concern about maintenance of the present $10 dividend rate.

Declaration by General Electric directors of the regular quarterly dividends of 40 cents a share on the common stock and 15 cents a share on the special stock appeared to help sentiment a little. There had been some discussion in speculative circles of late of the possibility of a reduction in the $1.60 annual rate of this company. No doubt such speculation had been occasioned by the recent reduction in the Westinghouse rate and the known unfavorable circumstances prevailing in the electric equipment industry at the present. But apparently General Electric directors are satisfied that the strong financial position of that company warrants maintenance of the rate pending a turn for the better in general business.

One high government official, whose identity is not disclosed for obvious reasons, would add an amendment to the Constitution making it a "high crime" to make public forecasts on the state of business. This official insists that a "paralysis of confidence" is delaying a return to normal conditions more than any other factor. He says the majority of forecasts being made today represent either the view of extremists or pleaders, and in many cases are utterly opposed to each other, as well as to all reason and precedent. The public, futilely attempting to reconcile the conflicting views, is inevitably led into confusion. "The public cannot act when in doubt," he says.

GOOD BUSINESS TREND SEEN

Business has turned the corner and is on the uptrend, according to Robert P. Page, Jr., president of the Autocar Company, Philadelphia, who stopped in Pittsburgh yesterday at the end of a tour of branch offices of the Autocar Sales and Service Company. He said:

"I believe that business has passed its worst, although I fear it will take a long time to get back to normal. Generally speaking, the foreign situation has affected exports. But we have always come back and we will come back again.

"When business is poor, people buy only the minimum of new equipment. Our sales show a slight improvement. We delivered more trucks the first quarter of 1931 than during the corresponding period in 1930. In the last 30 days there has been an upward trend."

U. S. Imports Less Foodstuffs in 1930

WASHINGTON, May 23.—The value of imports of foodstuffs for 1930 shows a decided decline compared with recent years—amounting to $693,701,000, or a decrease of more than 28 per cent compared with 1929 and 1928, according to the Commerce Department. This decline in value is partially accounted for by the lower level of world prices. However, the quantity imported also shows considerable decrease, the demand for many products falling off considerably owing to lower purchasing power and more cautious expenditures, reflecting the business depression.

DAIRY FARMERS WORKING OUT PROBLEMS

Butter and Egg Interests Cutting Production Costs; Find Advertising Helpful

CHICAGO, May 23.—(AP.)—Two mainstays of the nation's farm trade—the butter and egg industries—are working out their own salvation from a mire of low prices and shattered markets.

A bull movement in the butter and egg markets on the Chicago Mercantile Exchange—markets which never have experienced any artificial price stimulus—has given producers their latest bit of encouragement.

Within the last two weeks butter futures have gone up by $450 a car, while egg futures have followed closely with a rise of $240. Apparently undisturbed by dismal news from the securities markets, trading in these basic commodities is more active than at this time last year.

FIND OWN SOLUTIONS

The industries themselves, in the face of record low prices and 1930 losses variously estimated from $100,000,000 to $300,000,000, have adopted principles of increased efficiency to battle their way out of depression.

Costs of production have been reduced largely by culling herds and flocks. In many cases one cow capable of producing 400 pounds of butterfat has replaced two cows producing 200 pounds apiece. Fewer chicks are being hatched, and clicks booked for April delivery this year totaled 40 per cent less than in 1930.

By reducing overhead costs, yet maintaining production, many dairy farmers have been able to make a profit on their products—a scant profit, in most cases, yet enough for a living. Lower prices have stimulated consumption of butter, but more butter is being produced.

EXPANDING MARKETS

The egg industry, whose loss last year exceeded $60,000,000, has retailed not only by culling flocks and producing better eggs, but by widening its market through widespread advertising campaigns designed to encourage the use of eggs. As a result, increased sales of eggs have been reported by retailers.

Numerous indications of increased consumption, as well as favorable storage reports, have combined to start the current upward movement in the butter and egg markets. Many members of the trade have expressed confidence in a long pull back to higher prices, and look for a definite upward turn late in the summer or early winter.

Finds Livestock Rates Excessive

WASHINGTON, May 23.—The Commerce Commission is urged in a report by one of its examiners to find that rates on edible livestock from Virginia and West Virginia, origins to Washington, Baltimore, Philadelphia, Lancaster, Jersey City and other eastern points are unreasonable and that reparation be awarded shippers for alleged excessive rates charged in the past.

SECRETARY MELLON, HENRY BURBIG ON RADIO

WE NOW PRESENT

By DARRELL V. MARTIN,
Radio Editor

Western Pennsylvania is getting its share of publicity on the network. Last night the Columbia "News Drama" gave an excellent delineation of Pilot Charles Weibel's airplane experience at Bettis Field and tonight the mythical Hank Simmons dedicates his Show Boat performance of "Damon and Pythias" to WWVA at Wheeling, W. Va., the eighty-third station to join the CBS network. "Show Boat" is on WJAS at 10 o'clock.

KDKA has the Westminster Choir of the First Presbyterian Church, Homestead, at 8 o'clock . . . Henry Burbig returns to CBS-WJAS at 8:15 with Hebrew dialect and some new specialties, and Secretary of the Treasury Andrew W. Mellon speaks on WJAS at 9:30 . . . We almost forgot to mention our good friends Marcella Shields and Helen Handin, "The Two Troupers," who are doing a new feature, "Margy," for KDKA ears at 7:30.

Riggs and Moke, of WCAE, journey to WTAM, Cleveland, at 12:15 a. m., tonight, E. D. T. They will be the guests of Gene and Glenn during the 7:15 broadcast and later a party will be staged for them in WTAM studios.

QUESTION A DAY:

Do you have the words for Mendelssohn's "On Wings of Song"—just the last stanza that reads 'Love that knows no end' or something like that?—B. G., Avalon.

Answer — Mendelssohn composed "On Wings of Song" in his twenty-sixth year as a musical setting for a pretty little poem by Heine which has this ending:

"Together we'll rest, beloved,
Praying the gods will send
A dream that knows no waking,
A love that knows no end."

Cheers for someone at KDKA—Pilot Charles Weiblen has been persuaded to tell how he landed at Bettis Field after discovering that the strut of his plane had been broken. Monday night at 11:15.

Wynee Hartley, of the WJAS Cooking School, says she is so thin that she has to stand twice in the same place to make a shadow.

A local announcer took us for a ride last night when he promised the air raids from New York. Thinking perhaps that plans had been changed at the last minute, we waited breathlessly for the whirr of propellers and boom-boom — but there was nothing more exciting that Vincent Lopez' music at the other end of the line. However, the mistake was all right. We heard a premiere of "Doin' the New York," which may go places as far as popular songs are concerned. Vincent's arrangement of "Star Dust" rivals that of Don Bestor.

BABY ROSE MARIE

Earlier in the evening we met Baby Rose Marie at KDKA. She goes in a big way for Horace Heidt, the orchestra leader. The youngster (6) sings much more pleasingly with her tonsils removed . . . and is sweeter than ever. We noticed that while everyone insists on spelling her name in two words, that the little miss signed it "Rosemarie" in the KDKA register and gave her home address as 96 Crawford street, East Orange, N. J.

O'NEIL HONORED AT GREENSBURG

GREENSBURG, Pa., May 23.—Ralph T. O'Neil, national commander of the American Legion, was honored at a dinner given in the Penn Albert Hotel last night by the Westmoreland County Council of the Legion.

Leaders in the county's business, professional and political world were guests.

O'Neil said the American Legion should seek legislation in the next Congress to relieve the distress of dependent children of veterans who lie helpless in hospitals, and the widows and orphans of veterans.

Really Man Sues Kin of Harding

ROCKVILLE, Md., May 23.—(INS.)—Robert E. Lohr, real estate dealer, filed suit in the Circuit Court for $1,000 damages from Heber H. Votaw, brother-in-law of the late President Harding, and Mrs. Carolyn Votaw, his wife.

The suit charged Lohr sold a house for the couple for $9,000, but failed to collect 5 per cent allegedly promised him.

Physician Fatally Shot by Neighbor

PIEDMONT, Ala., May 23.—(AP.)—Dr. J. D. Morris, physician and land owner, was shot six times and killed at his farm near here yesterday by Thomas Lane, a neighbor, who surrendered.

Lake told authorities he killed the physician because they "couldn't get along."

CHAMPION MAX SCHMELING AT CONNEAUT LAKE CAMP

Just a day's roundup of pictures of "big shots" in the sporting sphere. At the left we see Max Schmeling, world heavyweight boxing champion (right) doing roadwork at his Conneaut Lake (Pa.) training camp for his title fight with Young Stribling at Cleveland, July 3. Running with him is Max Machon, his trainer. Next, Horton Smith, American pro, is playing out of a bunker in a tournament at Southport, England, in which he finished third. Second from the right, Gene Tunney, retired heavyweight champion of boxing, is being welcomed to Helsinki, Finland, by Mr. Dixon, of the American degation (center), and Mr. Smeds, president of the Finnish Boxing Federation. Ed Brandt, right, is the big "rave" of Manager Bill McKechnie's Boston Braves, leading the National League pitchers with victories in all of his first six starts, to top the latest averages. He has finished every game and allowed a total of 15 runs and 35 hits, a remarkable record. He won but four games last year.

FIVE EXTRA ROUNDS MAKE CHAMPION

IN THE GREAT majority of instances, the failure of a challenger to defeat a champion in a ring battle is in line with the bulk of the dope and with the expectations of most fight followers. But the failure of Fidel La Barba to turn that trick in his feather-weight title lack-luster, disappointing tilt with Battling Battalino in New York last night was one of the greatest surprises the glove game has produced in a long while. A 3-to-1 favorite in the betting at post time, and the pick of nine-tenths of the boxing men, La Barba had shaped up on form as an almost certain winner, particularly as Battalino was barely able to make the weight and was thought to have been weakened by the strain.

Fidel La Barba

Battalino pulled one upset last December when he beat Kid Chocolate, but on that occasion his opponent was adjudged out of stride. No claims of that sort can be made this time, however, for La Barba was in top form, had everything he ever owned in the line of Queensberry wares, and in winning the decision and retaining his title Battalino must be given credit for a surprising victory even though it was due largely to nothing more than aggressiveness in a poor fight.

OF ALL THE fistic puzzles of recent years, Battalino is the prize mystery. He loses to nearly every third-rate opponent he meets and then turns in and beats all the good ones. Granting that he has been an underrated titleholder and that the real proof of a champion is ability to come through in the toughest spots, it is hard to figure how a fighter who has been beaten a dozen times by such men as Young Zazzarino, Roger Bernard and Cecil Payne can turn back such boxers as Chocolate and La Barba.

The extra five rounds tacked on to title fights in New York may be part of the explanation. Battalino is a fighter of the Battling Nelson type—stout-hearted, unflinching, as tough as raw hide and punching his way forward all the time regardless of how often he may be hit. Cleverer boxers outpoint him over the ordinary route, and both Chocolate and La Barba had the lead on him at the end of the tenth round. It was in 10-round bouts that other opponents defeated him.

BUT IT APPEARS that those additional five rounds spell the difference between a losing and a winning Battalino. His dogged aggressiveness coun' and his tireless punching takes the steam out of less rugged foemen and turns the tide.

After all, the longer the distance the harder the test, and it takes a better champion to win over the long routes than over the short ones, though La Barba was disappointing in his lack of aggressiveness. Battalino has proved himself better than he was thought to be, and where previously it looked as if there were two or three featl..rs who could beat him the chances now are that he will lose his title only by outgrowing the class. He is right on the verge of doing that.

THE ACTION OF Gov. Pinchot in vetoing the McClure bill, which provided for the return of the admission money to patrons in event of a main bout ending in a foul and required that the principals meet in a return bout before receiving their pay is disappointing to many boxing fans who believed the measure would help to cure the fouling evil in Pennsylvania. But the bill itself was faulty in providing that the boxers' pay be held out and also that the patrons' admission money be refunded, inasmuch as the pay of the boxers is a percentage of the receipts. That part of the money could hardly be withheld and at the same time returned to the customers. The promoters would have to pay out a big sum from their own pockets in doing the refunding. Also the Governor makes a puzzling statement in his veto explanation in saying "It would be a great advantage to the promoter to be permitted to stage another bout without any additional cost." Inasmuch as the receipts of the first show would have been refunded, the promoter would not be getting any extra profit at the second. There would not be two intakes for one show. As a matter of fact, he would be out the cost of a second set of preliminaries and the pay of officials, ushers and other employes, as well as additional expenses.

W. P. I. A. L. FAVORITE IN STATE MEET

By JESS CARVER
Staff Correspondent.

ALTOONA, Pa., May 23.—The windup of the long and strenuous track and field campaign for Pennsylvania high school squads comes to an end here today as the dozen districts of the P. I. A. A. battle in an all-day meet for the state title. The individual entry list is in excess of 500.

The W. P. I. A. L. district rules a slight favorite to retain the title it won so handily last year, with the individual school championship expected to result in a dogfight between half a dozen schools. Williamsport High's Cherry and White clad athletes scored a signal victory a year ago, but crack squads from Lower Merion, of District No. 1; Plymouth, Altoona, Erie Academy, Scranton Central and Bedford are accounted formidable enough to crowd the Williamsporters from the title shelf.

W. P. I. A. L. WEAKENED

The W. P. I. A. L. will not find the going as smooth as it did a year ago. In the first place, the league has lost some strength in that the Pittsburgh schools have been grouped in a district of their own and will compete here today independent of the W. P. I. A. L. In the second place, Washington, which won the league title in Pittsburgh last week, is not contesting for the state crown, being engaged in the annual Washington County carnival today.

All the same, with individual stars of the caliber of O'Dile Pryor, of Ford City, and Eddie Dooms, of Uniontown, Negro sprinters; Johnny Murphy, of Butler, javelin star; John Grim, of New Brighton, and Joe Straus, of Ellwood City, hurdlers; Mike Nicksich, of Burgettstown, weight

EXPLANATIONS OF RIPLEY'S CARTOONS OF YESTERDAY: TYCHO BRAHE HAD A GOLDEN NOSE—Tycho Brahe, the famous Danish asetronomer (1546-1601), lost his nose in a duel while living at Wittenberg, Germany. For the lost organ he ingeniously contrived a substitute made of gold, which fitted perfectly. THE FEZ IS NOT A MOHAMMEDAN HEAD DRESS—About 100 years ago the Turkish Sultan, Mahmed Khan, upon his return from Paris, ordered his subjects to discard the Mohammedan turban in favor of the tall Parisian silk hat, the brims of which he ordered removed in sympathy with the Mohammedan law which bars brims. Thus was born the "fez" which eventually was destined to become the most distinguished mark of a Turk. In our days, Mustapha Kemal abolished the "fez" in favor of peaked caps, berets and hats. The abolition of the "fez" is being enforced with severity. This varying fortune of a piece of headgear is an amusing detail in the history of the country. WEST'S SHIELD SHRIMP HAS 1,802,604 LEG JOINTS—One of the most wonderful animals on earth is the web foot belonging to the class of the crayfish (apus cancriformis). A zoologist in Germany (Schaffer) has counted all joints on the legs of this crayfish and found the immense total of 1,802,604. "THE WIDOW'S MITE"—SMALLEST COIN—Mention of the "Widow's Mite" of the Bible is found in Luke xxi, verse 2.

CHICAGO, May 23.—The Pirates invade the lair of the Bear today. The Ensmen expect to lay a three-day seige at the home of the Bruins with considerable fireworks expected today and tomorrow.

The Cubs will make their reappearance before home folks on top of a disastrous trip to the Atlantic seaboard. In view of the situation it would not be surprising if many in the big crowd anticipated this afternoon will bring along their impression of the Bronx cheer, which will be dished out to Rogers Hornsby and his players.

The Cubs won only two of their eight battles while in the East, and as a result, they now resemble a mediocre ball team which is vastly different from the club their countless supporters had envisioned.

COMING EAST, May 23.—It is getting so only the oldest inhabitants can remember the last time the Athletics dropped a game. Those guys sure earned their carfare on this last western trip. These days it is quite a feat to take 13 straight of anything, even if it's only beer. You got to hand it to Cute Connie Mack. He let his boy athletes play with matches and they went and burned up the league. I wouldn't be so mad only the Yanks and our club don't carry any fire insurance. All we can do is stay on the sidelines and watch the A's get away with arson. Our only hope is that their first spring lineup gets hit by a falling chimney.

BATTALINO KEEPS TITLE IN SLUGGISH BOUT

U. S., Canada Complete Davis Cup Play Today; Yankee Stars Favorites

FANS JEER, BOO AS CHAMPION BEATS FIDEL

NEW YORK, May 23.—(AP.)—Christopher (Bat) Battalino, featherweight champion, turned back the title bid of Fidel La Barba last night, but he failed to gain anything except the heartiest boos of one of the most discouraged gatherings that ever surrounded the big battle pit.

For 15 long and lackluster rounds, the champion and challenger hauled and cuffed like a pair of dispirited preliminary boys, while 9,100 of the faithful jeered and whistled and searched for new methods of displaying their disapproval.

The opinion was general that no two warriors in recent history, fighting for a world championship, have turned in such an uninteresting exhibition. For most of the 15 rounds, La Barba, 3-to-1 choice in the wagering as the boys entered the ring, did little except run and hold, and Battalino, continually floundering after him, apparently did not know what to do once he caught up with the curlyheaded challenger from Los Angeles.

La Barba, fighting for his second title, landed the cleaner, more effective blows with left jabs to the head, fired left hooks to the body as they came to close quarters, and short right crosses when Referee Kid McPartland, after more hauling and tugging than it usually takes to separate a pair of tangled wrestlers, finally got them apart.

But whatever advantage he gained through the better punching he lost by his persistent holding and his unwillingness to force the fighting at any stage of the match.

Battalino cuffed the former flyweight champion slightly at close quarters and landed occasionally with both hands to the head the few moments they were in the open, but it was his aggressiveness rather than any great amount of fighting ability that gained him the unanimous decision of the referee and two judges. The Associated Press score card gave each warrior six rounds with three even.

SHIELDS, WOOD EASY VICTORS IN DOUBLES

MONTREAL, Que., May 23.—(AP.)—The United States took a commanding lead in the Davis Cup series with Canada yesterday as Frank X. Shields and Sidney B. Wood, Jr., of New York, swept to a straight-set victory over Dr. Jack Wright and Marcel Rainville in the doubles competition. The score was 8-6, 6-4, 6-2.

The victory gave the United States a lead of two matches to one with only a victory in one of the two singles matches today needed to clinch the contest and earn for the Americans the right to meet Argentina at Washington, D. C., June 28, 29 and 30. Shields will match strokes with Rainville in the opening match while Wood will clash with Wright.

The youthful United States combination was never threatened as it put the Canadian veterans to route. Shields and Wood were pressed only in the first set, but breaks through the service first of Wright and finally Rainville gave the United States youngsters the decision in the fourteenth game.

Rainville and Wright carried the fight to the invaders again in the second set, taking a three-game lead, only to see Shields and Wood sweep irresistibly from behind and forge ahead once more. Playing with increasing speed, clever placements and more confidence, the New Yorkers ran out the set and then rushed onto a quick third-set victory.

GRAYS OPPOSE DORMONT

By TOM BIRKS

King Jupiter Pluvius put a crimp into the activities of the sandlotters last evening, all district games being called off when rain fell steadily around the supper hour.

This afternoon at Forbes Field, the Homestead Grays will meet Dormont, of the City League, in a double header.

Advance notices have it that Bill Doak, former big league spitballer, will be on the firing line for Dormont in the first game, with Wilber Cooper, former Pirate star, scheduled to twirl the nightcap. However, there is a doubt regarding Cooper. He will probably be playing the outfield, with Leo Carroll pitching.

This evening, the newly formed Beechview club will clash with Homewood at the Alton street grounds at Beechview. The Board of Trade is backing this team. A large crowd is anticipated.

PINCHOT VETOES RING BILL

HARRISBURG, May 23.—(AP.)—Gov. Pinchot vetoed the bill of Senator John J. McClure, Delaware, providing for the return of the admission price when the principal bout of a wrestling or boxing match ends in a foul.

The Governor said the bill would work a hardship on a contestant, who is doing his best, to make him box a second time without compensation. He said the referee would be empowered to order a second match, the purse of the first being withheld from the contestants pending the outcome of a second match within two months. If the second bout should not be staged the purse would go to the state treasury.

This provision, the Governor said, would be a great advantage to the promoter to be permitted to stage another bout without any additional cost.

HILLSMEN NEAR SEC. II TITLE

South Hills High School not only eliminated Langley from the running for the Section II baseball title in the City League yesterday by defeating them, 2 to 0, but established itself in a vantage position to cop the section crown.

Carrick and Oliver, other teams in the running for the title, were forced to call off their battles after playing three innings, and will make another try Monday. If Carrick beats Oliver, the title will automatically go to South Hills. If Oliver wins, a playoff game will be necessary.

Lentz hurled fine ball for South Hills yesterday, limiting Langley to three scattered hits.

The Westinghouse - Schenley game for the title in Section I was not played, Westinghouse losing to Duquesne, 3 to 0. The Section I rivals will play Tuesday, on the neutral Allderdice diamond.

Beaver High was eliminated from the W. P. I. A. L. running when Mt. Pleasant scored a surprise 6-to-3 victory at Beaver. Mt. Pleasant now will face McKees Rocks in a semi-final game at Ambridge next week.

The Duke Preps defeated the Brookline Juniors, 12 to 5, yesterday and Baxter was beaten by Latimer, 9 to 1.

WASHINGTON TWP. WINS

Washington Township won the junior W. P. I. A. L. track and field championship yesterday afternoon in the annual meet held at Duquesne. The victors scored 48 points, Duquesne was second with 29, Clairton third with 27, South Brownsville fourth with 24½, and Calhoun fifth with 3.

CLUB TO OPEN NEW QUARTERS

By VERN SWARTSFAGER

An inspection of the renovated clubhouse and the new structure containing the locker room facilities, will be made by members and their guests at the Edgewood Country Club tonight. The inspection will take place between 7 and 8 o'clock with the usual Saturday night dinner dance following, according to Dr. John Day Garvin, chairman of the house committee.

The inaugural tourney is being held today at the Summit golf links, in the mountains above Uniontown, where one has to ride a burro to the first tee, and is to be continued with a mixed foursome event tomorrow.

The first Red and Blue dinner match is to be held at St. Clair today. Four-ball match play against par under seven-eighths handicap, and best ball, four-ball matches are slated for Shannopin.

Wildwood is staging a best ball, two-ball match play competition, while medal play is in force at the Greensburg Country Club. Stanton Heights and other clubs throughout the district have carded their regular Saturday sweepstakes events.

Yesterday, a two-ball mixed foursome was held at the Pittsburgh Field Club with a large field playing. J. F. Newman and Mrs. R. T. Hambleton scored low net with a 79. Rain held up play late in the evening.

been elected captain of the Yale freshman tennis team, signifying that he means to give the major portion of his sports attention and time to the net game and feels that as far as baseball glory is concerned his dad won enough of it for the whole family.

NOT ALL SONS of famous baseball fathers are without diamond aspirations, however. The latest case in point is that of Walter Johnson, Jr., son of the once mighty pitcher now managing the Washington Senators. He not only is going in for baseball but aims at his father's former role and is blossoming out as a hurler.

Young Johnson is one of the leading pitchers of the amateur ranks in Washington. An accident kept him out of the game last year, but he is back with more enthusiasm than ever. He won two games in impressive style during the last week and is said to be developing a skill that assures a bright future for him.

HOW FAR DO you think the average husband arriving home about 1:30 a. m. could get with a story that he had been held back by a baseball game that lasted until 1 o'clock in the morning? Yet he would have been telling the truth if he had attended a recent game at Los Angeles in the Pacific Coast League between the Angels and the Portland Ducks. The dizzy argument, starting at 8:15 p. m., went 16 innings and did not end until 1 a. m., lasting four hours and 45 minutes. The Ducks took a two-run lead in the first half of the sixteenth, but the Angels came from behind and scored three runs in the second half to win, 10 to 9.

MANY BALL PLAYERS have been accused of being at their best after midnight, but this is the first time on record that any of them ever actually worked at their trade in a league game after that hour, the first game that was not finished until the day after it started. All of baseball's thrills were packed into the midnight drama, even to an assault on the umpire.

Manager Jack Lelivelt, of Los Angeles, was ordered off the lot by Umpire Genshlea in the ninth inning, but hid in the dugout until the fifteenth, when Genshlea discovered him and chased him to the showers. Then the fans pelted the arbiter with cushions. To top it all off, Spencer Abbott, Portland skipper, protested the game because the umpire ruled a hit through the rightfield screen by Billy Rhiel, Youngstown citizen, a double instead of a home run. League President Harry Williams disallowed the protest.

THAT TWENTY GRAND is not only the greatest race horse of the present year, but the best colt he ever saw, is the assertion made by Charley Kurtzinger, the jockey who rode the star of the Greentree Stable to victory in the Kentucky Derby.

In breaking the Derby record, Twenty Grand covered the mile and a quarter at an average clip of better than 18 yards a second, but Kurtzinger says the colt could have done even better if he had urged him, and that he merely galloped home from the half-mile pole. Frank Coltiletti, who rode Sweep All, the place horse, agrees with Kurtzinger that Twenty Grand is unbeatable on a fast track. "He went by me like an automobile," he said.

Charley Kurtzinger

"I AM SURE Twenty Grand could have done the distance four-fifths of a second faster if I had ridden him hard," Kurtzinger remarked to Henry King. "He'll win the Belmont in a trot. The farther he goes the better he likes it, and if the track is fast on Belmont Day don't be surprised if he hangs up a new world record for a mile and a half. Nothing but the worst kind of racing luck will beat him again this year. He's a good horse, with no bad habits. He is nor a rail runner, as has been said. I had no trouble whatever in taking him around four horses at the half-mile pole, and he would have gone around a dozen if I had asked him to do so. And don't think he can't run well in the mud. He's good in any kind of going. In the Pimlico Futurity last fall he was beaten by only a scant margin by Equipoise, and you must remember Equipoise is one of the best mud runners on the turf."

KAYOS FEATURE BOXING SHOW

In the overtime tussle, Sparky Ewalt, of the Pastorious A. C., punched out a victory over rugged Tom Hanson, of the Valley Boxing Club.

The first knockout came in the 112-pound class, when Johnny Falgione, Willow Club, won by a technical knockout over Red Dodson, Valley Club, in the second round. Johnny Durso, another Willow Club entry, won by a technical kayo over Pete Okershak, Valley Club, in the first round, and John Hazel knocked out Tom Daniels, Alexander A. C., in the first round. The other knockout was scored by Joe Ferraro, Kingsley House 147-pounder, who stopped Pal Reno, of the Braddock Library, in two rounds. The summary:

135-pound class—George Julius, Willow Club, won from Dick Pritchard, Pittsburgh Lyceum, three rounds, decision; Johnny Durso, Willow Club, won from Pete Okershak, Valley Boxing Club, technical knockout, first round; Johnny Hazel, Pittsburgh Lyceum, won from Tom Daniels, Alexander A. C., knockout, first round; Joe Bruce, Kingsley House, won from Walter Boyd, Willow Club, three rounds, decision.

star; Kingsley, of Clairton, discus and javelin handler, and the crack Uniontown mile relay quartet of Farson, Stern, Redd and Dooms on hand, the W. P. I. A. L. will make it exceedingly tough for the ambitions of any other district that seeks its abdication today.

FLEMING BACK

The representatives from the Pittsburgh city schools are not accounted as being overly strong. The ace of the lot will be Roscoe Fleming, Westinghouse High's crackerjack quarter-miler, who tied the P. I. A. A. record here last year and has bettered it in meets this spring. Fleming may run into considerable difficulty today in taking his favorite event for Pryor, of Ford City, has developed into as good a quarter-miler as he is a sprinter and will run in the 440.

Any record breaking, of course, depends on the weather and the condition of the track. Yesterday's hard rain did the Mansion Park Stadium track here little good, and the soggy and slippery turf will afford the weight men insecure footing, at best.

The meet will get under way at 10 a. m. (eastern standard time) with the preliminaries. The finals are scheduled to start at 1 p. m.

MELLON HORSES WIN LAURELS

BALTIMORE, May 23.—Three more blue ribbons were attached to the entries of Richard K. Mellon, of Pittsburgh, as the second day of the annual Worthington Valley horse show passed into history.

In addition to the blue ribbons won by the Mellon horses, Mrs. Simon Patterson, of Pittsburgh, and J. U. Kuhns, of Greensburg, landed awards for the Pittsburgh district.

Bird Catcher, a 6-year-old chestnut mare; Laurel, a 4-year-old gray mare, and Straide Gift, a 7-year-old gelding, were the Mellon horses awarded blue ribbons. Straide Gift won the main prize of $200 in the $500 lightweight hunter class.

J. H. Kuhn failed to win any blue ribbons, but he scored numerous seconds and thirds in the saddle horse classes. Horses entered from the Green Valley Stable, of Sewickley, owned by Miss Gretchen Shoonmaker and the Misses Walton, of Pittsburgh and Sewickley, failed to come up to their good showings of Thursday and failed to win awards.

STEELE TOSSES ROEBUCK

PHILADELPHIA, May 23.—(AP.)—Ray Steele, of California, last night tossed Tiny Roebuck, Oklahoma Indian, in 37 minutes and 18 seconds in the final bout of the indoor wrestling season. He obtained the fall with a back-drop.

PERLICK TWINS WIN AND LOSE

ERIE, Pa., May 23.—The Perlick twins, of Kalamazoo, broke even here last night, Herman, the better of the duo, pounding out a one-sided victory over Tug Phillips, of Charleroi, in the 10-round top bout, while Henry took a thrashing from Ray Collins, Erie, in another 10-rounder.

In the main go, Phillips was outclassed from the start and failed to show anything in the way of aggressiveness except in the seventh round when he shook Perlick with a couple of hard rights to the head.

I. T. Battles, Erie Negro middleweight, copped the decision over Ollie Koski, of Worcester, Mass., after six rounds of torrid scrapping.

In another corking bout, Johnny Tracey, Jamestown, N. Y., scored a technical knockout over Joe Belicki, Erie welter, in the last round of a four-round bout.

ORANGE CREW LOSES STROKE

ITHACA, N. Y., May 23.—(AP.)—The well-laid plans of Syracuse University's naval forces to make a sweeping bid for honors today in the quadrangular spring day regatta with Cornell, Harvard and Massachusetts Tech have been upset by the loss of Milton Weiler, of Buffalo, varsity stroke oar.

Weiler, ill with lumbago, collapsed after rowing three miles up Lake Cayuga in practice. He was taken to the Cornell infirmary.

This development forced Jim Teneyck, veteran Syracuse coach, to switch to his erstwhile "Jayvee" eight, stroked by Tom Lombardi, for the two-mile climax feature of the regatta today. This combination is composed mainly of sophomores who rowed to victory last June at Poughkeepsie in freshman company.

ALBANY, N. Y., May 23.—(AP.)—The New York Giants defeated the Albany team of the Eastern League yesterday, 5 to 1, by combining hits with Albany passes.

P. T. A. LEAGUE TITLE RACE OPENS TODAY

Pitt Track, Tennis Teams End Campaigns With Penn and Ohio State

STRONG SQUADS ON EDGE FOR INAUGURALS

By PAUL G. SULLIVAN

Provided always that typical opening-day weather spares the local area a week-end visit, the Pittsburgh Tennis Association Inter-Club League will inaugurate 1931 hostilities on the rectangles of eight Steel City net organizations this afternoon. Sixteen teams, totaling upward of 100 racqueters, are set for action on the bi-divisional circuit and seek auspicious start down the lengthy title trail toward August.

SECTION II REDUCED

In Section II, five veteran squads — Westinghouse Seconds, Duquesne Library, College Avenue, West Penn Power, and Washington Heights—will square off in competition with a trio of promising newcomers—Rockwood, South Hills Seconds, and Bellevue—for rounds of skirmishing that should behold keen rivalry among genuinely well-matched title aspirants.

Frank Smith's Edgewood host, Section I premier, initiates attempt to land its third consecutive crown and incidentally to retain possession of the lately presented Davis Keg by entertaining the youthful South Hills followers of Jimmy Creighton. Meanwhile, Dr. Dave O'Loughlin will lead his bauble-chasing P. A. A. performers into fracas with Howdy Campbell's College Hill combine on the Bigelow-and-Ruskin lot, while Stanton Heights visits University Club and Mt. Lebanon jaunts to Westinghouse.

BELLEVUE STRONG

Bellevue rounds out the lower division program in joust with Washington Heights in the latter's Hill-top bailiwick—and it may be recorded here and now that the North Boroughs delegation, boasting such experienced sharpshooters as Bob Lampus, the Morcroft boys, George Schmucker, and Bud Leyda, aims to make matters exceedingly interesting for all rivals right down the stretch.

PIRATES, CUBS OPEN SERIES

pitched a brilliant game for six rounds, but he had to come out for a pinch hitter.

The Pirates expect to face either Charley Root or Lester Sweetland in the first battle. Like the Pirates, the Chicago pitchers have had plenty of rest, and Hornsby, therefore, has any number of twirlers ready for the series.

Manager Jewel Ens joined his team here this morning. With Ens was Gus Suhr, injured first baseman, who will partake of a workout today. Gus has been out of action for more than three weeks with a lame right knee.

BUCS WIN EXHIBITION

The Buccos reached Chicago late last night after partaking of a short barnstorming mission in Indiana. The big leaguers staged an exhibition contest in Huntington, a town located 20-odd miles from Fort Wayne.

Andy Bednar was in rare form in the clash with the home team, the Nokomis coal miner scoring a clean shutout victory as he held the Hoosier lads to three hits. Andy did not walk a batter, and he took 11 of the lads by way of the strikeout route. The score was 4 to 0. The lineup:

SUHR, BENNETT JOIN BUCCOS

Jewel Ens, Pirate skipper, took Outfielder Fred Bennett as well as First Baseman Gus Suhr along with him last night when he left to rejoin the Bucs in Chicago today.

Ens figured Bennett might be needed as a reserve gardener to replace Forrest Jensen, who has been released under a 24-hour recall agreement to the Newark Internationals.

DORVAL BEATS GALENTO

DETROIT, May 23.—(AP.)—Jack Dorval, Boston heavyweight, outpointed Tony Galento, of Orange, N. J., in a 10-round bout here last night. Dorval weighed 216, Galento 217½.

RAIN CURTAILS SCHOOL MEET

WASHINGTON, Pa., May 23.—Qualifying trials for Class II and III entrants in the annual Washington County High School track and field games were nearing completion here yesterday afternoon, when rain called a halt to proceedings.

The feature was the performance of Mike Niksich, Union High, of Burgettstown, in breaking the existing shotput record. Niksich tossed the 12-pound shot 44 feet 2 inches, smashing the mark set last year by Bruce, of Trinity High.

Girls' teams of eight high schools compete this morning and preliminary heats in all other events will be run off, with all finals listed for the afternoon.

BEAVER FALLS, Pa., May 23.—Beaver Falls High School's track team pulled a surprise here yesterday by nosing out Ellwood City and Rochester in a triangular meet. Beaver Falls scored 65 points; Ellwood City, 62, and Rochester, 21.

Zaneski, of Rochester, was high scorer with 15 points representing firsts in the high jump and javelin throw, a second in the shot put and a third in the discus. Kopriva, Beaver Falls, was second with 14.

VANCE INJURED; ROBINS WIN

PHILADELPHIA, May 23.—(AP.)—Dazzy Vance, Brooklyn's speedball pitcher, sustained a cut about two inches long and bruises on the right side of his face when he was struck by a ball batted by Pinky Whitney in the ninth inning of the first game of today's doubleheader between the Dodgers and Phillies. Vance was unable to remain in the game and Jack Quinn finished.

It is not believed that Vance's injury is serious enough to keep him out of action.

Brooklyn struck its winning stride, taking both games of the doubleheader and rising from seventh place to the top of the National League's second division. The double victory enabled Brooklyn to pass the Phils and the idle Pittsburgh Pirates.

IOWA SURPRISES BIG TEN FOES

EVANSTON, Ill., May 23.—(AP.)—Iowa, hardly considered in the advance dope, swooped into Dyche Stadium at Northwestern University yesterday and placed 16 men, to lead the qualifying for the finals of the thirty-first annual Western Conference track and field championships today.

The Hawkeyes were given little consideration on the basis of season performances, but Coach George Bresnahan turned loose a flock of field event men who made his team a definite threat for the title now held by Michigan.

The Wolverines did about as expected, qualifying 15 men, while Ohio State and Illinois turned up with 15 and 13, respectively. Wisconsin placed 10, Indiana 8, Minnesota 6, Northwestern 3 and Chicago and Purdue 2 each.

TEXAS GUNNER LEADS NATION

DAYTON, O., May 23.—(AP.)—E. F. Woodward, veteran marksman of Houston, Tex., is leading the trapshooters of the nation so far this season, according to standings announced here at headquarters of the American Trapshooting Association.

Woodward missed but three targets in 500 chances, and has an average of .9905 for the period from January 1 to May 13. Last year Woodward won the high average title, and his record so far this year includes 199 out of a possible 200 on two different occasions.

LOTT, VAN RYN SCORE WINS AT AUTEUIL

AUTEUIL, France, May 23.—(AP.)—John Van Ryn and George Lott, America's two youthful contenders for the French hard courts tennis championship, sailed through their opening singles matches yesterday without being seriously extended.

Lott, an avowed contender for the title relinquished by the ailing Henri Cochet, romped to a straight-set victory over Andre Piel, of France, 6-1, 6-2, 9-7, while Van Ryn was disposing of another Frenchman, Rene Villard, 8-6, 6-3, 6-3.

In today's doubles round, Lott and Van Ryn, the favorites, are paired against the English combination of John Olliff and I. G. Collins, in the semi-final round.

The most surprising upset of the tournament so far came yesterday in the quarter-finals of the mixed doubles, where Jean Borotra, the French ace, and his American partner, Miss Elizabeth Ryan, fell before Dr. P. D. Spence and Miss Betty Nuthall, of England, by scores of 9-7, 6-3.

It was Miss Nuthall's second victory of the day. Paired with Mrs. Eileen Bennett Whittingstall, she entered the finals of the women's doubles by defeating Mme. Mathieu, of France, and Senorita De Alvarez, of Spain, 7-5, 6-3. In the finals they will encounter Miss Ryan and her partner, Cilli Aussem, of Germany.

WINDUPS TO GO ON EARLY

By HARRY KECK
Sports Editor.

Hereafter all outdoor boxing main bouts in the Pittsburgh district may be such in name only.

Announcement was made today by Manager John L. Hernon, of Hickey Park, Millvale, that the semi-final will follow the so-called windup on all cards at his club, as was the case at the opening show, last Thursday night. The experiment went over well with the fans and for this reason will be continued. Manager Apples Meyers, of the Meyers Bowl, North Braddock, is contemplating a similar policy at his arena.

The Bowl put on the Jack (Kid) Berg-Ray Kiser bout before the semi-final at its opening show last Monday night because of a threat of rain and Hickey Park sent Jimmy Thomas and Willie Davies into the ring ahead of time because of the chilly weather. In both cases, most of the fans remained until the finish of the semi-final, but they could have left early in an emergency and yet not missed the main event.

The late Tex Richard inaugurated the stunt of bringing the main bout into the ring early when the elements threatened, and the practice has become quite general in outdoor arenas throughout the country. It has been resorted to here from time to time in the past few seasons.

Incidentally, Hickey Park is casting about for a new windup for next Thursday night. Al Fay, Charleroi heavyweight, and Patsy Perroni, of Canton, O., had been signed, but word was received yesterday from Teddy Hayes, trainer of Fay, that the latter is not in condition for a match on such short notice. Whether a new opponent will be lined up for Perroni or an entirely new match made will be decided today.

Between Rounds

Buck McTiernan finishes up his hard work today for his 10-round main bout with Tommy Freeman, former world welterweight champion, in the Meyers Bowl, Monday night. He will work out only lightly tomorrow to keep limbered up. Freeman is expected in town tomorrow.

Two of the wrestlers who will appear on the opening outdoor card at Hickey Park, Millvale, next Tuesday night are Californians, Ray Steele, who meets John Padonbney in the main bout, and Floyd Marshall, who grapples Steve Znoski. Znoski, by the way, is a recent graduate of Rider College, in Brooklyn.

Mose Butch injured his right hand in the second round of his bout with Marty Gold at Hickey Park Thursday night, after having Gold on the floor three times in the first round. He won the bout and now is out with a challenge to Jimmy Thomas, Willie Davies and all of the other bantams around here.

Joey Spiegel Wins By Technical K. O.

UNIONTOWN, Pa., May 23.—(AP.)—The towel stopped the main bout between Joey Spiegel, 140½, Uniontown, and Hal Murray, 136, Harrisburg, here last night. Spiegel was awarded a technical knockout when Murray's seconds refused to let him continue in the sixth of the scheduled 10-round battle. He had been knocked down in the fifth and was saved by the bell, and then took four falls in the sixth before the fight was stopped.

LEHIGH ELECTS GADD

BETHLEHEM, Pa., May 23.—(AP.)—F. W. Gadd, of Hartford, Conn., has been elected captain of the Lehigh University tennis team.

MANERO LOSES TITLE CHANCE

LEEDS, England, May 23.—(AP.)—Ernest R. Whitcombe, member of Britain's Ryder Cup team, yesterday shattered Tony Manero's hopes of lifting one of the biggest plums of British professional golf, beating him, 2 and 1, in the semi-finals of the Leeds $5,000 golf tournament.

Manero, sole survivor of the American contingent, lost his putting touch and that cost him the match. The Elmsford, N. Y., pro had played in excellent form to conquer Percy Alliss, British professional at a Berlin country club, 4 and 3, in the quarter-finals. His game was not up to par in the afternoon match.

LIONS FAVORED TO DEFEAT PANTHERS

The intercollegiate dual track and field and tennis campaigns for Pittsburgh will be completed today, with Pitt athletes holding the center of the stage.

The Panther trackmen, vastly encouraged after their decisive triumph of earlier in the week over Carnegie Tech, engage Penn State's crackerjack squad in a dual meet, with the freshman teams of the two institutions tussling along with the upper classmen.

While the trackmen are going through their paces with State, the undefeated Pitt tennis team will wind up its season by facing Ohio State on the Stadium courts. Two Panther net stars, Capt. Eddie Jacobs, who has not been defeated during his college career, and Milt Cohen, who doubles up as a basketball player, will take part in the final varsity matches this afternoon against the Buckeyes.

Penn State rules a strong favorite to win in the varsity track event, with Capt. Everett Utterback, of Pitt, being the locals' sole hope of keeping the score down.

While Pitt is meeting Ohio State here, the Duquesne netters will engage Grove City at Grove City. Yesterday, rain put an early stop to the duels between Carnegie Tech and Bethany, the match being called off after Bergahne, of Tech, had beaten Nelson, of Bethany, 6-1, 6-3.

Fight Results

At New York—Battling Battalino defeated Fidel LaBarba, 15 rounds; Andy Sayoola won by a technical knockout over Romeo Vigna, 4 rounds; Joe Barbara won by a technical knockout over Jackie Schweitzer, 3 rounds; Harry Carlton defeated Buster Brown, 8 rounds; Joe Ghnouly defeated Jimmy Turco, 4 rounds.

TARTANS CLOSE WITH VICTORY

Carnegie Tech's varsity track and field team received the plaudits of the school today following the team's decisive triumph in the closing meet of the season yesterday at Grove City. The Tartans took the Grover by an 84 2-3 to 50 1-3 score.

Tech was led by its captain-elect, Tom Coulter, who won both the hurdle races and the quarter-mile. He was clocked in :49.2 for the 440, setting a new Grove City record.

George Nease, Carnegie's sprint star, won the century in :10 flat, but placed second in the furlong to Jacques Croissant, a teammate. In the field, John Karcis defeated an old rival of high school days in Freddy Pusch in the discus, with a heave half an inch better than that of the Grover.

Seyboth, of Carnegie, set another new Grove City mark when he heaved the shot put 42 feet 2 inches. Nease's time in the 100 equaled the record. The victory gave the Tartans four victories against two defeats for the year.

FIND MAN'S THUMB Is Not Best In the World!

The Hand of Man, the Thumb of Which He Developed by Abandoning Tree Life and Picking Up Things on the Ground.

FROM MODELS IN THE AMERICAN MUSEUM OF NATURAL HISTORY, NEW YORK

Curious Cat-like Animal Found in Forests of Malay States Has Thumb a Shade Better than Man's

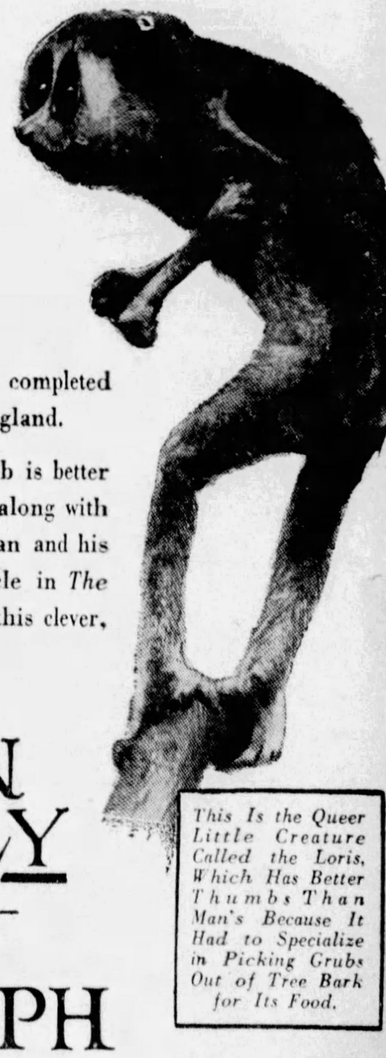
The Thumb Considered the Best in the World, Belonging to the Curious Little Animal Called the Loris.

WHEN man's ancestor left the trees, according to facts at the disposal of science, his thumb was small and relatively weak. . . . But after he started to shamble along the ground trying to pick up stones to throw, or to look for grubs under them, the development of man's thumb began.

That development, scientists agree, is one of the chief reasons for the pre-eminence that man has reached among all living creatures on earth. . . . Yet definite proof now establishes the fact that the best thumbs are not ours but an odd little cat-faced animal's called the Loris.

This was recently revealed after a thorough study completed at the Royal Anthropological Institute in London, England.

Of course there is a reason why the Loris's thumb is better than man's most useful digit. . . . You will find it, along with many other interesting facts about the thumbs of man and his distant cousins, in an exceptionally interesting article in The American Weekly next Sunday. . . . Be sure to read this clever, enlightening article!



This Is the Queer Little Creature Called the Loris, Which Has Better Thumbs Than Man's Because It Had to Specialize in Picking Grubs Out of Tree Bark for Its Food.

TELL IT TO SALLY

By SALLY MARTIN

Are You Afraid to Marry On a Small Salary?

Is marriage a trap?

J. T. C. says it is.

Are you a fool if you "marry poor?"

Will Mary, gorgeously and recklessly in love, soon find herself "worn and haggard from undernourishment, worry and lack of rest," if she marries John before he makes his roll?

J. T. C. says she will.

Is J. T. C. right? How has Love in a Cottage worked out for you?

If you had your marriage to do over again—would you marry John, with his slim roll . . . or would you wait?

"Dear Sally:

"I certainly disagree with your advice to young people to marry on hope and a small salary.

"Nature is the most deceitful high-pressure humbug salesman there is. Marriage, to those who listen to her, appears like a rosy dream, but, believe me, sister, when you get in it and step on the thorns, it is 'not so hot.'

False Illusions

"Mary pictures herself five years hence sweet, fresh and pretty, with her dear husband who never loses his temper, one or two healthy, pretty, well-behaved children, money saved, and most likely her dear husband's salary doubled. And always her husband's love.

"Well, five years later, she finds herself worn and haggard from undernourishment, lack of rest and worry. Instead of 'love in a cottage,' she has hate in a basement flat. And the chances are that God only knows where the next month's rent is coming from.

"She has one or two howling, underfed, sickly children, bills galore, and a husband who is out of work half the time. And who probably consoles himself with hooch and other women, upbraiding Mary for being worn and haggard.

True Sometimes

"Love is but one element in this business of marriage . . . and not the most important by a long shot. And if those entering marriage haven't sufficient foresight to consider the material side of life—and their children's side, they certainly won't have sufficient sense and self-control to make their marriage successful.

"J. T. C."

That's her story, and she sticks to it! And sometimes, I'll admit, it's a true story. There are people who are ground down and trapped by a marriage like that .... by poverty and want. No one can deny that ....

But, after all, the great mass of the people of these United States .... the people who are the real backbone of this great American commonwealth .... are not rich people.

Thousands of them began with nothing and have only what they've made themselves. And somehow, they live and find life a big, satisfying adventure. Somehow they're happy, interested, full of sparkle and vim .... and proud of how much they've been able to make out of the little they have .... proud of the things they've created, of the battles they've won .... not in spite of being poor .... But because being poor sharpened their wits and challenged their clever hands.

Was love and marriage a trap for them?

Has it been a trap for you?

'TAKE A TIP'

Drawn by Nell Brinkley

TINY CAPES ARE IN ORDER! THE FLOWER-PETAL.
YOUR HAT, BELIEVE IT OR NOT YOUNG WOMAN, IS TIRED OF GOING DOWN THE BACK, AND—YO HO! THE MAN-O'-WAR JACKET!
THE ONE OF ERMINE.
SO, TAKE A TIP AND BUY YOUR NEXT HAT FALLING OFF THE SIDE!
1931
YOU WILL WEAR WIDE BELTS WITH MATCHING FLOWERS.
SANDALS ARE HERE!

Take a tip and when you buy for your summery excursions, be sure and remember that this summer-girl is not going to be the summer-girl of last year—and take note of the new gagets!

There are some mighty sprightly ones that dress a girl up.

Jackets of course—I told you so. Every color, and growing more midget day by day, just as small as you can bear it and get your healthy form into it.

The newest is the sea-going. Mess-jackets, sailor jackets, and something looks like the old man-o'-war, with crome-plate buttons to glorify it. And you must wear your knitted hat very much over one eyebrow.

That's another dodge this summer. Hats are growing weary of falling off the back. It won't be long now before they are ALL off the side-slipping—slipping. You wait and see.

Capes—chiffon, fur, taffeta, cotton, satin. Easy to wear—and oh joy! which can be said of so few chic things—easy to MAKE.

And the flowers and the purse, or the flowers and the wide kid belt must match. Just bits of ginger-bread that make a lady prettier than nature or a dressmaker did! —NELL BRINKLEY.

Love's Reawakening

The Guests Arrive at the Farmhouse

There was much affectionate concern in Katie's voice as she warned me against staying up all night to arrange Christmas presents, that I was unable to speak for a choky second or two. Not a hint had she given of the fatigue which must be hers, not the shadow of an objection had she raised to my request for a midnight lunch for the Christmas party. Her only worry had been for me, and, as her cheery familiar, "All right, I feex," followed me out of the kitchen with my eyes carefully avoiding the table where she was patiently concealing the Christmas gifts she was wrapipng for the farmhouse family, I was glad that the personal Christmas I had planned for her this year was more lavish than usual. Katie and Jim are singularly alone in the world, with no real relatives, so I never voiced the objections I would otherwise make to their custom of giving Christmas presents to each one of us. It is so evident a joy to them that I can only plan to make it up to them at suitable occasions throughout the year, thanking my particular little joss for the long and faithful service they have given me.

I warily avoided my mother-in-law's vicinity, but I observed, with relief, that she evidently was all over her little temperamental flurry over the impending arrival of the young people from The Larches. Seated in her favorite armchair near the Christmas tree, she was holding a court with my father. Mary and Ronald attentively listening to her. I noted that someone had placed the chair with such adroitness that she had an opera-box view of the big rooms, but was so protected by other furniture that the young people, when they began to dance, could not come close enough to disturb her.

"Some niece we've got!" Dicky murmured, as I joined him in the doorway, from which he was scrutinizinz the Christmas tree. "The way she quelled Mother's flurry over the people from The Larches coming over, and got her settled over there, where she can see everything and yet not be disturbed, was a diplomatic masterpiece. But I don't know as I blame her much at that. I wish that gang would let us have Christmas Eve to ourselves."

"They've lost no time," he said, as he started for the door. I followed him, and the next instant I felt as if I were the center of a whirlpool, so excited and joyous were the eight young people who came rushing in, with Helena Brixton, Lillian, Harry and Philip Veritzen following them more slowly, but, to all appearances, sharing their enthusiasm.

They are all well-bred youngsters, and they lingered near us, exchanging greetings until I "shooed" them all into the living room, with an injunction to Marion.

"Dearest, you're hostess tonight. We oldsters are going to be very busy. See that your guests have a good time."

They scampered into the living room upon the word, and we heard them "oh-ing" and "ah-ing" over the Christmas tree.

"I'm so anxious to see that tree," Helena Brixton said, with the pretty indolent grace which is hers. "Lillian has been exclaiming: 'Just wait till you see it,' at intervals of one minute ever since she came back from here."

I slipped my hand under her arm, glad to evade Philip Veritzen, whose attitude indicated his intention to keep close to me for the rest of the evening, and led her to the Christmas tree. She waited only for the courteous greeting of Mother Graham and my father to exclaim rapturously over it. Then, as I had secretly feared, she turned her attention to the decorations.

"I never saw rooms so beautifully decked. And where did you find such marvelous roses?"

I tried hard to keep my voice nonchalant and my cheeks from flushing; was miserably conscious that I had failed in both attempts as I answered

"Aren't they exquisite?" I parried, then added, of necessity, "You must give Mr. Veritzen the credit for them. He brought them over this afternoon."

HOW TO KEEP WELL

By DR. ROYAL S. COPELAND

If You Lived One or More Centuries Ago!

We constanly read in the newspapers about the discoveries of new germs, new methods of diagnosis and new treatments. We no longer live in an age of ignorance concerning the diseases of mankind.

Dr. Copeland

Of course, there remain many diseases which have not as yet been conquered by modern science. But research laboratories every where in the world are working on these problems.

From the very beginning of history, man has been engaged in a desperate struggle to maintain his supremacy. Darwin coined the expression "survival of the fittest." By this he meant that only those who are adequately provided with strength and resources to live can hope to survive.

By means of the great advances made in science, modern civilization enables many an individual lacking in these requirements to survive. Study of the factors in nutrition, of the diseases that attack man, and of the methods of prevention against disease, permits the survival of millions who must have died under the conditions of a century or two ago.

Prior to the invention of the microscope, man worked in an era of darkness. In his struggle for existence, he could not combat his invisible foes—the germs, the microbes, the bacteria, which attacked him from the dark.

Bullets have slain thousands of men, but bacteria have slain their tens of thousands. The invention of the microscope revealed these tiny organisms. By means of the microscope, man learned that communicable diseases and infections are brought to the body by tiny germs. After their discovery, it became necessary to study and classify these various foes of mankind. This work has progressed steadily.

Modern science has found means to make the body resistant to certain diseases. This has been of greatest value in the prevention of disease. In consequence, there is marked decrease in the mortality rate of all nations of the world.

Medical progress is clearly seen in studies of smallpox, cholera, typhoid fever and diphtheria. We are on the verge of still greater knowledge.

Answers to Health Queries

H. R. T. Q.—What is the cause of convulsions in a small baby?

A.—This condition may be due to worms, intestinal disorder or the outset of some infectious disease.

JOHN H. Q.—Can flat feet be overcome?

2.—What causes granulated eyelids?

3.—How can I get rid of a bad taste in my mouth?

A.—This condition can be remedied by wearing the correct kind of supports. Consult an orthopedist.

2.—This condition is due to infection. Bathe with a mild solution of warm boracic acid several times a day and apply 1 per cent yellow oxide of mercury ointment at night. However, have the eyes tested to see if glasses are needed and if your case is really troublesome you should have treatment.

3.—Locate the cause and treatment can be advised. The trouble may be due to nasal catarrh, indigestion, constipation, diseased tonsils or decayed teeth.

Beauty Box

By HELEN FOLLETT

Is there a roll of fat on the back of the neck that is not swanlike? Be after it. Lie flat on the floor, on the back, lift the head slowly. Lower it slowly. Adipose tissue doesn't like disturbance. This hard pull on muscles of neck and shoulders urges the cells to move on. A good sound hammering with hands folded tight will flatten out the fat roll.

Spiral ringlets are new tricks. Make you think of poke bonnets and pantalettes. The bob is neither short nor long, but short enough to form curls at the rear, with which one can design ravishing and beautiful coiffure arrangements. Tres chic, if you ask us, especially for evening with the bouffant frock and new hair ornaments that are guaranteed to put the other woman's eye out.

Undergarments that have not been rinsed free of soap may set up a state of dermatitis, make the skin surface of the body rough and reddy. The proper laundering process is to soak the garments in cold or tepid suds, to wash in warm suds, to put through at least four clear rinsing waters. Powder pads must be washed carefully, rinsed well, else they, too, will produce an irritation of the epidermis.

If the old topknot is looking seedy, after a hard winter, try a tonic rub. Combine rubbing alcohol and water, equal parts, and put it on the scalp with a medicine dropper. With the first three fingers of each hand rub the scalp with a firm rotary motion. Go over the entire scalp and proceed down at the back of the neck, where are the large arteries. Speeding up the circulation speeds up the hair growth.

Alopecia areata is a common hair trouble. The hair falls out in spots, from the size of a dime to the size of a dollar; sometimes the spots are even larger. The bald patches appear almost over night. No need for alarm. With plenty of scalp massage, the nightly use of a stimulating tonic, and, within six weeks the new growth appears. Individuals past 50 seldom suffer from alopecia areata. Children and young people are the victims.

While acne may be induced by bacteria invading the pores, there's no question about the need of hygiene and the wisdom of following simple laws of health. The intestinal tract should be kept in an active state. Plenty of water should be taken each day; helps to wash out the fabric of the skin. Six glasses aren't too many. Starches and sweets should be almost entirely depleted from the diet for the time being. Certain healing rays are used in treatment of pimples.

Oh, These Women

By LEOLA ALLARD

"They told me I should give up this man I'm going to marry, because he is selfish, domineering, bosses me around and some times his jealousy is cruel," said J. J. K.

She is a smart little somebody, only 25, and deeply in love. Has been for four years. "Well," she sighed, "I decided I knew what I wanted, and I would rather have him with all his faults than another man of whom all of my family and friends approve."

So they are to be married tomorrow, and, I imagine, will live happy ever after.

"How do you know that you are in love?" I asked her, and she smiled as she told me: "Because we quarrel. I wouldn't care for anyone who always yes-ed me and was so agreeable that I wanted to choke him. That sort is too trying. Insipid, I call it. I want some zest to my life with Robert, and, believe me, we have plenty of it."

"How do you know," I asked, somewhat wide eyed, "that you won't have MORE quarrels after marriage and come to grief?"

"Because," and here the quiet, happy smile, "I always give in. Sometimes I talk too much about somebody or something, and I feel it myself—I get to be terribly boring. I'm bored with the subject myself. It hits me all in a minute.

"Well, just about that time, Robert says 'Well — that's enough of that. Let's drop the sub'ect.' He is right and we drop it. Now I'd much rather he would do that than sit and wish I were in Timbuctoo. That ends it and I don't grouch about it. I think." (and here's the eye opener) "THAT MEN ARE USUALLY RIGHT, AND THAT IF WOMEN TAKE CUES FROM THEM, THEY WILL SAIL ALONG VERY HAPPILY. FEW MEN WANT TO QUARREL. THEY WANT PEACE—AT ALMOST ANY PRICE. IF MEN ARE DIRECT AND TELL A WOMAN WHAT THEY THINK—AND MOST OF THEM ARE—THEN WHY NOT TAKE THE CUE INSTEAD OF STARTING A FIGHT? I DO, AND IT WORKS LIKE MAGIC."

How a young thing of 25, pretty and smartly dressed, and a business woman if you please, earning her own living, can come into all that wisdom in so few years I don't know. But she should be giving advice and collecting on it. She's a veritable wow, and she hasn't a wrinkle in her face.

Now don't think she is the sappy sort of creature who just says "Yes dear" and "No dear," and "As you will, dear," and "Whatever you say dear." She isn't. She's got spirit—plenty of it. But she knows that there isn't any satisfaction in quarreling. You'd think all married people would know it, but they don't seem to. So she sidesteps a quarrel "because," she explains, "men don't know how to do that, and women always do, if they WANT TO."

If that girl's marriage doesn't turn out happy, I'll lose my faith in matrimony—which I haven't yet, in spite of the hundreds of complaints I hear about it.

It's strange, but an outsider can almost always see where the trouble is, when she reads one of these letters. The people involved are too close to the picture to get the details that stand out like sore thumbs to the outsider who is interested in people.

Household Hints

Neglected drinking water is said by veterinarians to be the cause of many ailments of household pets. A shallow earthenware dish can easily be scalded each day, cannot rust and its smooth surface will not harbor germs.

Rhubarb juice for rust stains. The worst rust stains (even those of long standing) can be removed without injury to the fabric by the application of boiling rhubarb juice. Thoroughly rinse them afterward in cold water.

Children whose teeth are well scrubbed regularly twice a day and are sent to the dentist every six months will never have that nasty green stain around the tops of their teeth. The stain is a sign of neglect and a reflection against the mothers, not the children.

Correct Manners

By MRS CORNELIUS BEECKMAN

Often It Makes Good Conversation

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

Please tell me your opinion of the following. A woman I have known for over 20 years invited several old-time friends for dinner. Don't picture a society affair. Just a make yourself at home. It so happened a few of them there felt they could be themselves and as they see each other almost every day, they did not feel they must stand on ceremony. One of the women picked up a magazine and glanced through it. Another woman has since made slighting remarks that the one that picked up the magazine was terribly ignorant to do such a thing. Of course, Mrs. Beeckman, if the affair had been a formal one, or had there been strangers present, or if the persons present did not see each other so often, I know she would not have looked through the magazine. She was not taking part in the conversation at the time, and thinking she was unobserved, she looked through the book. Was she terribly ignorant? READER.

To criticize this woman for doing such a casual thing is indeed to make a mountain out of a molehill. At an informal party of this kind there wasn't any reason why she shouldn't have looked through a magazine, if she wished, and if she didn't do it too long. People often do this, and make good conversation of what they see in the magazine! Just as they look at the pictures in a home, or at the books in the library.

Saying the Right Thing in The Receiving Line

Dr. Mrs. Beeckman:

1. When attending a tea or reception, what does one say to those in the receiving line, if one has never met them before?

2. Does one shake hands with each?

3. Suppose such a tea were given by a club and one took a guest? M. H.

1. Greet each one as you proceed down the receiving line and tell each one your name. Extend your hand, and say, "How do you do. I am Mrs. Graham," or reverse the statement. In this case, you would not, as you would in other occasions when you are introducing yourself, give your first name, for, obviously, this would make the introduction more confusing than if you give only your last name and your title. Say your name distinctly, so that the first cohostess hears it clearly, and can, if this is the custom, introduce you to the woman next in line. Then the introduction can be very simple down the line, and this makes it easier for the guest who doesn't know the women in the receiving line.

If there is time as you pass along, it is gracious to make some comment, perhaps on the charm of the occasion, or the decorations, or even the weather, that old warhorse of the conversational ball!

2. Yes.

3. Then you would not only introduce yourself, but would also introduce your guest.

COUNTY DROPS FAULTY BIDS

Rejection of all bids for the structural steel and wire rope fence for the Ohio River boulevard has been announced by the County Commissioners.

Action was taken yesterday after the commissioners had consented to allow the W. L. Evans Construction Company to withdraw its low bid of $39,587 for the reason that the material the firm expected to use was patented and that a lawsuit might follow.

The commissioners had a letter from Percy E. Hunter, president of the Independent Bridge Company, protesting against all other bidders on the ground that the Independent concern had patented the material all bidders had figured on. The Independent's bid was $67,939.

The commissioners ordered the advertising for new bids and the preparation of specifications that would avoid controversy.

Soviet Courts Order Safety Measures

MOSCOW, May 23.—(AP.)—Because of recent numerous breakages of machinery in factories and on collective farms the Supreme Court has issued instructions to officials of all district courts throughout the Soviet Union that henceforth "carelessness" will be considered a crime.

All offenders must be tried under criminal statutes and conviction would carry with it imprisonment or exile.

The government recently has been concerned over increasing damage suffered by machinery and also an epidemic of fires in state plants and houses.

All In A Day

By Mark Hellinger

"DEAR MR. HELLINGER," writes J. J. G. "I don't know where you received the information regarding the pudgy little movie magnate who wanted the story of his life written to order. Suffice it to state that your version—through no fault of your own—was as far from the truth as, let us say, one of Jimmy Durante's or Ted Healy's stage lunacies.

"You spoke of a young man who was chosen by the magnate from his corps of assistants. You said that the young man worked for several years to gather his material. And you added that, after the chosen man had worked for several years, he was compelled to turn his material over to an English author, who was to finish the book. The Englishman finished the book—and the digger was given no credit.

WHY COLUMNISTS GO DAFFY

"So much for your story. I hate to differ with you—but I was engaged to write the magnate's story in the first place. My medium was the Saturday Evening Post. In such a capacity I was compelled to be the digger—and I was compelled to unearth such highlights in his career as would make him appear as resplendent as an angel. I was promised almost half of his possessions if I could carve a niche for him in the Saturday Evening Post.

"If you will be so kind as to turn to the pages of that weekly printed during August and September, 1927, you'll find my story printed serially under the title of 'From the Inside' or 'This Business of Motion Pictures.' Thereafter, this movie magnate paid me a substantial sum for an assignment of those articles to him. And then your English author—John Drinkwater, if I'm not too fresh—stepped into the scene.

"For Drinkwater to do a story of an American film producer is like getting up some morning and reading a notice in your favorite gazette that the snooty Rudyard Kipling has contracted to do a biography of 'Peaches' Browning or Clara Bow! It's that ridiculous.

"It is for that reason that I write to you. In your column, I have no objections if you sob when you feel that you must. But when you sob over something that requires no sobbing, then I object.

"Don't be misled over the fanciful wrong done the film magnate's young flunky. His 'years of digging' is strictly a fanciful notion. What he really did was merely to dump my material into the lap of John Drinkwater, who, in turn, used it to good advantage."

It is evident, Mr. J. J. G., that you didn't read the book in question. Otherwise you would never say that he used the material to good advantage . . .

"I GOTTA real problem," writes Mitzi M——. I don't know whether I should go to the editor of the paper in which I read you—or to a doctor. Accordingly, with my mind in its present shape, I'll load it off on you.

"If they make powdered sugar, why don't they make powdered salt? I'm not trying to be funny—and I'm not a nut. I mean it. So I ask you once again—if they make powdered sugar, why don't they make powdered salt?"

That certainly is a tough question, Mitzi. And the only reason I can think of is that it might not be in good taste . . .

"DEAR MR. Hellinger," writes Susan E. ————, of Brookline, Mass. "My boy friend and I have had an argument about something and I thought perhaps you could help us patch it up.

"Last night he took me to see that French picture 'Le Million.' Neither of us know the correct pronunciation of the title. He pronounced it one way and I the other. And we actually fought over such a silly little thing. Now, I know that you've helped people in similar predicaments. So I'm leaving it to you.

"Kindly tell me the correct pronunciation of 'Le Million,' will you?"

Certainly, Susan. Hellinger is always glad to come to the rescue of a fair damsel in distress. "Le Million" is pronounced "Le Million." . . .

"HELLO," begins a letter from an anonymous contributor in Omaha, Neb.: "As you are the prettyest gentleman I ever see in the paper, gives me pleasure from heart to write a few lines to congratulate you for the good work you did for your readers in the past, and that pleasant smile on your face is good prove that you got a good heart and see things in this world that pours joy in your heart and makes you say—this is a good world after all.

"No doubt the reason you have that pretty smile on your face is because you have everything in this world that your heart desire. You are pretty young and faithful with a good future before you and no doubt you have money and a good home and are acquainted with the prettyest lady that ever lived.

"People are proud of this lady. This lady get sweeter but her beauty never fade. This is known all over the country and you ought to be proud more of this lady than any person and I am glad to mention her name to you. It's Mrs. Gladys Glad Hellinger, your wife.

"No wonder you have that pleasant smile on your face. I will advise you to always have that pleasant smile on your face because it make you look so pretty. Now I will give you a hard job. It is to write about smiles if you dare.

"Guess who sent you this letter. A Lady or a Gentleman?"

Oh, well . . .

"DEAR MARK:" writes Al Klein. "If I sent you a letter with the following gags, do you think you'd be able to use them?

"1. Times are so hard that many a person hasn't enough money to take a taxi to the poorhouse.

"2. That chap who says the earth is flat may be right. It does taste that way sometimes.

"3. 'Say, Joe, they're building an optician's store on that corner.' 'Oh, I get it—it's a site for sore eyes!'

"4. Peggy Joyce's career has been very sexessful."

No . . .

"SOME TIME ago," writes Gus D., "the papers talked about the German project of skyrocketing an airplane from Berlin to New York in about 90 minutes. In school I was taught that it takes a certain time after touching an article before one becomes conscious of it. Accordingly something is worrying me.

"Suppose we are in that plane at the start of the trip. We light a cigaret and, being a trifle nervous, we burn our fingers. The message of our finger tips to the brain could not race with the terrific speed with which we would be traveling through space.

"Consequently we would not know that we burned our fingers in Berlin until after we have arrived in New York. What can be done about it?"

I don't know, Gus. Have you tried bromo seltzer?

COURT SHIFTS SIX POLLS

Location of six polling places have been changed, upon petition, by Judge George V. Moore, as follows:

Fifth district, Third ward, from Miller street school to 117 Dinwiddie street. Fourth district, Second ward, from O'Hara school, twenty-fifth and Smallman streets, to 2640 Penn avenue. Fourth district, Twenty-third ward, from Latimer High School to Koerner Hall, 1307 East street.

Seventh district, Twenty-third ward, from 308 Chestnut street to 507 Chestnut street. Fifth district, Twenty-fourth ward, from Grace Evangelical Lutheran church to 1266 Spring Garden avenue. First district, Second ward, Harrison Township, from 82 Vine street to River View School, Sixth street.

AUTOIST SLUGS POLICEMAN

A motorist who narrowly avoided running down Patrolman Fred Hall, of Oakland, in the Boulevard of the Allies at Craft avenue, and who knocked Patrolman Michael Duralia from his running board in Pennwood avenue, Edgewood, early today, was being sought.

Duralia came upon the car, parked in the middle of the street, after it left the city, and jumped on the running board to question a man and girl sitting in it. The man struck him and knocked him to the street.

Police Chief William Campbell, of Swissvale; Chief John Dyer, of Edgewood, and Duralia located the girl and learned the man's name and address, it was said. His arrested was expected.

PAIR ARRESTED IN THEFT PLOT

Two men, one a former assistant superintendent of the Parting of the Ways Home, where paroled convicts are sheltered, today were being held by detectives who said the pair contemplated a half dozen holdups in the downtown and the North Side.

The men, Edward Morris, 38, the former home official, and Francis Reilly, 23, were arrested in North Park by Detective Sergt. George Brubach and Detectives Elmer Mallasee and Fred Gray as they were discussing plans for the robberies, according to detectives. Reilly, recently released from the workhouse, met Morris several months ago, detectives said. They will be arraigned Monday morning.

$6,800 AWARD FOR INJURY

A verdict of $6,800 damages in favor of Mr. and Mrs. Fred Hauck, 1113 West North avenue, North Side, for injuries to Mrs. Hauck when she tripped and fell into an excavation at Allegheny and Beech avenues, North Side, March 23, 1929, was found by a jury in Common Pleas Court before Judge Joseph Stadtfeld. The City of Pittsburgh was named defendant in the suit but the verdict was against the Equitable Gas Company, joined as the responsible party by the city. Mrs. Hauck, confined to bed, gave her testimony by deposition.

Fireman Returning From Blaze Injured

Falling to the street as he was alighting from one of the fire trucks of Engine Company No. 3 in Webster avenue early today, Ladderman William Bell, 28, of 1931 Federal street, fractured his right ankle. He was taken to Mercy Hospital. The truck was returning from Bluff and Magee streets, where firemen had extinguished a rubbish fire.

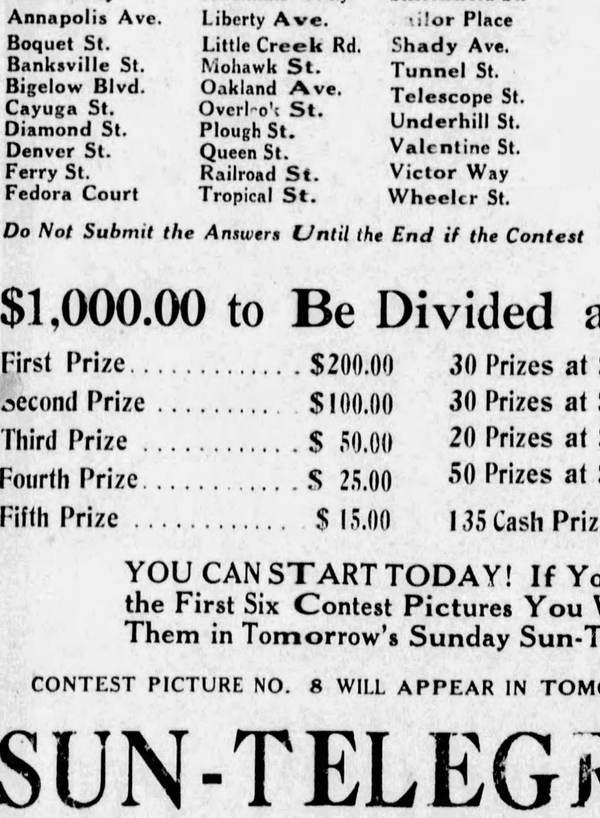
KNOW YOUR OWN CITY

Cash Prizes! New!

While the entire series of 40 cartoons in this new contest will be based on the names of the public thoroughfares of Pittsburgh, the contest will be attractive to all readers of the Sun-Telegraph, no matter where they live, because under each contest picture there will be a list of thoroughfare names and in this list the correct answers can be found.

CONTEST PICTURE NO. 7



Name of Thoroughfare.

Album St.	Highland Ave.	St. Patrick St.
Amos Way	Kaufman Way	Smithfield St.
Annapolis Ave.	Liberty Ave.	...ilor Place
Boquet St.	Little Creek Rd.	Shady Ave.
Banksville St.	Mohawk St.	Tunnel St.
Bigelow Blvd.	Oakland Ave.	Telescope St.
Cayuga St.	Overlook St.	Underhill St.
Diamond St.	Plough St.	Valentine St.
Denver St.	Queen St.	Victor Way
Ferry St.	Railroad St.	Wheeler St.
Fedora Court	Tropical St.

Do Not Submit the Answers Until the End if the Contest

READ THESE SIMPLE RULES:

(1) Under the title, "Know Your Own City," the daily and Sunday Sun-Telegraph will publish a series of cartoons to run consecutively for 40 days, starting Sunday, May 17. All of these cartoons will represent a public thoroughfare in the territory commonly included in Pittsburgh, and prizes will be awarded to readers who submit the neatest and most nearly correct set of picture answers.

(2) A total of $1,000 in cash prizes will be awarded, divided as indicated in another part of this announcement.

(3) This offer is open to all except employes of the Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph and their families. You pay nothing. Files of the Sun-Telegraph are available at the Public Library or at the office of the Sun-Telegraph, and you may make tracings of the cartoons if you desire.

(4) Answers in the contest are not to be submitted until the entire set of 40 has been printed. After the last (No. 40) cartoon has appeared, entrants will be allowed 15 days to submit their sets of answers. They are to be addressed to the "Know Your Own City" said ordinance south 67 degrees 34 minutes 19 seconds east 89.98 feet to a point of curve, the co-ordinates of which point as described in the above mentioned ordinance being north 67 356.14 east 93 503.97; thence eastwardly continuing along the said southerly line of Woodruff street by the arc of a circle deflecting to the left with a radius of 987.78 feet and a central angle of 130 degrees 59 minutes 20 seconds for an arc distance of 241.17 feet to a point; thence south 8 degrees 26 minutes 27 seconds west 17.94 feet to the place of beginning.

SECTION 2. The name of that portion of Woodruff street in the Nineteenth and Twentieth Wards of the City of Pittsburgh as widened by the provisions of Section 1 of this Ordinance shall be and the same is hereby changed to Saw Mill Run boulevard.

SECTION 3. The Department of Public Works is hereby authorized and directed to cause said Woodruff street (renamed Saw Mill Run boulevard) in the Nineteenth and Twentieth Wards of the City of Pittsburgh, from a point 177.96 feet east of the point of tangent at Saw Mill Run boulevard to a point 80.28 feet west of the first point of tangent west of Saw Mill Run boulevard to be widened in conformity with the provisions of Section 1 of this Ordinance.

SECTION 4. The costs, damages and expenses occasioned thereby and the benefits to pay the same shall be assessed against and collected from properties benefited thereby in accordance with the provisions of the Acts of Assembly of the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania relating thereto and regulating the same.

SECTION 5. That any Ordinance or part of Ordinance, conflicting with the provisions of this Ordinance, be and the same is hereby repealed, so far as the same affects this Ordinance.

NOTICE is hereby given that Ordinance, copy of which is published herewith, was introduced in the Council of the City of Pittsburgh on May 11, 1931, pursuant to the provisions of the several Acts of Assembly, authorizing said City, without any petition of property owners, to open, widen, straighten, extend, vacate, grade, pave, curb, macadamize and otherwise improve streets and alleys or parts thereof, within its limits, viz:

BILL NO. 3534.

AN ORDINANCE—Widening Woodruff Street in the Twentieth Ward of the City of Pittsburgh, from a point 420 feet north of Lewis Street to a point 60.67 feet north of Woodville Avenue, changing the name thereof to Saw Mill Run Boulevard, and providing that the costs, damages and expenses occasioned thereby be assessed against and collected from properties benefited thereby.

SECTION 1. Be it ordained and enacted by the City of Pittsburgh, in Council assembled, and it is hereby ordained and enacted by the authority of the same, That Woodruff street in the Twentieth Ward of the City of Pittsburgh, from a point 420 feet north of Lewis street to a point 60.67 feet north of Woodville avenue, be and the same is hereby widened to a variable width by taking for public use for highway purposes the property hereinafter designated and described as Portions "A" and "B" respectively, to-wit:

PORTION "A"

BILL NO. 3536

AN ORDINANCE — Opening Saw Mill Run Boulevard in the Twentieth Ward of the City of Pittsburgh from Lewis Street to a point 726.65 feet east of Lewis Street and providing that the costs, damages and expenses occasioned thereby be assessed against and collected from properties benefited thereby.

SECTION 1. Be it ordained and enacted by the City of Pittsburgh, in Council assembled, and it is hereby ordained and enacted by the authority of the same, That Saw Mill Run boulevard, from Lewis street to a point 726.65 feet east of Lewis street, be and the same is hereby opened to a general width of 80.0 feet by taking for public use for highway purposes the following described property, to-wit:

Beginning on the southerly line of Lewis street at the dividing line between property now or late of Lino Karrash and Della Karrash and property now or late of Andrew Reis; thence extending along the southerly line of Lewis street north 80 degrees 53 minutes 36 seconds east 36.56 feet to an angle in the same; thence continuing along the same south 64 degrees 49 minutes 24 seconds east 256 feet to a point; thence south 38 degrees 48 minutes 10 seconds west 6.25 feet to a point; thence south 80 degrees 39 minutes 50 seconds east 437.27 feet to a point; thence south 29 degrees 20 minutes 10 seconds west 80 feet to a point, said point being distant 726.65 feet east of the southerly line of Lewis street as measured along the southerly line of Saw Mill Run boulevard to be opened by this Ordinance and said point being also distant north 29 degrees 20 minutes 10 seconds east 52.05 feet from the intersection of the first point of tangent as widened by Ordinance No. 549, approved July 31, 1929, at a point distant north 67 degrees 34 minutes 19 seconds west 460.33 feet from the first point of tangent in the same west of the present intersection of Saw Mill Run boulevard and Woodruff street; thence extending northeastwardly on a curve to the right 80.28 feet along the said northerly line of Woodruff street from the first point of tangent in the same west of the present intersection of Saw Mill Run boulevard and Woodruff street; thence extending northeastwardly on a curve to the left with a radius of 640 feet and a central angle of 15 degrees 50 minutes 56 seconds for an arc distance of 211.84 feet to a point of reverse curve; thence westwardly by the arc of a circle deflecting to the left with a radius of 54.37 feet and a central angle of 57 degrees 24 minutes 30 seconds for an arc distance of 54.48 feet to the place of beginning.

SECTION 2. The Department of Public Works is hereby authorized and directed to cause said Saw Mill Run boulevard in the Twentieth Ward of the City of Pittsburgh, from Lewis street to a point 726.65 feet east of Lewis street to be opened in conformity with the provisions of Section 1 of this ordinance.

SECTION 3. The costs, damages and expenses occasioned thereby and the benefits to pay the same shall be assessed against and collected from properties benefited thereby in accordance with the provisions of the Acts of Assembly of the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania relating thereto and regulating the same.

SECTION 4. That any Ordinance or part of Ordinance, conflicting with the provisions of this Ordinance, be and the same is hereby repealed, so far as the same affects this Ordinance.

Jennifer Hides Sense of Humiliation at Party

(This famous story has been made into a talking picture by Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer with Marion Davies in the leading role.)

CHAPTER XV.

At the last moment, and to the rushing of innumerable servants, the Edgertons had turned their dinner-dance out-of-doors. The suddenly limped October, the imminence of moon, the belated perfume of late white honeysuckle, had pressed their way into the ballroom, which was spread with 50 small tables and elaborately laid out across one end with brass rail, polished counter, battalion of bottles and glasses, and the faithful verisimilitude of a sprinkling of sawdust.

The milky light of one of those pale nights that never becomes quite dark poured down on to the blue-tile terrace. Tables had been dragged out there. A hurried platform for musicians was being set up between one pair of the lions, submerging one flight of terrace-stairs. Lanterns were run up in the groves and along the edges of the swimming pool.

A formal party had suddenly gone violently informal. Tom Edgerton, already convivial, had conceived the idea, along with the change of party policy, of dragging out a vast iron pot on a crane, to boil corn-on-the-cob in the open. The bar was being set up in a pergola.

When the first guests arrived, Leslie Edgerton, in a bouffant white gown with wired panniers and tumbler in one hand, was still in the act of trying to convey to a gardener her idea of how a small red bulb should dangle from the pointed left ear of a marble faun.

It was true that every few moments her rather pretty heart-shaped face twitched as if her nervousness were a prankish jack-in-the-box. The small red electric bulb refused to dangle from the left ear of the marble faun. She grasped it from the servant, and, leaping to a stone bench, began to adjust it herself.

She was in that position when Jennifer and Berry and a smattering of early guests appeared on the wide marble staircase. At sight of them, she swung herself by the neck of the faun, legs out in a rigid horizontal, and began kissing him against his chilly lips.

It started out as that kind of party.

The way Jennifer had long since decided, to feel at ease at what she called these closed-corporation functions, was to pretend to be as intimately a part of them as everyone else was, or pretended to be.

A sense of not belonging; of not knowing these people on the easy informal basis they knew one another, assailed her, and seemed to lock her tonsils and stiffen her heart on those occasions when she penetrated into the social fastness of the gayer, if less conservative, elements of these safely intrenched families.

Their intimate talk that took so much for granted. High bandying of Christian names where she was addressed as Miss Rarick. References to past functions to which she had not been bidden, and to future ones to which she would not be bidden.

Jennifer Uneasy

Not that she was not very much part of these scenes. The Edgertons moved in swift, newspaper-headline sets. But even here she was consciously Miss Rarick. The way to keep a stiff upper lip when you were ill at ease and inwardly frightened was to see to it that you were conspicuously Miss Rarick. You listened, when the two on either side of you at dinner leaned across you to indulge in familiar discussion of an important social function to which you had mysteriously and damnably not been bidden, with a smile as bright as platinum drawn across your face.

You let them make up a party around you to go off cruising in warm waters on the yacht of the father of a boy who had just kissed the back of your neck, and laughed at some sally about the Delaware Gap and the Delaware Yawn, as if you were not stinging at the omission.

The lively Miss Rarick was loud in her laughter. That was part of the stiff upper lip. She was daring in her dress, but impeccably so, never erring beyond the bonds of chic. A good fellow up to a point, and that point, as she was fond of putting it, an exclamation point.

Perhaps he had never realized she was not spoofing. He had, though! He had. He had. He had jumped like a sprung trap when she had come out with it. Perhaps he had thought her a little spifflicated. God make him think I was tight! No, no, no, he wouldn't. They had not even stopped for cocktails before they drove off. There came that hateful Irene Annescy! How did one address her? Hello, Irene? Or just Miss Annescy?

Berry in Demand

Miss Annescy solved it. "Hello, Berry! Haven't seen you since 3 a. m. Good party at the Ruhls', wasn't it? Hello, Roger! Say, you're driving with us over to Edgecombe from here for a sunrise cocktail. Howdo, Miss Rarick!"

With the exception of a center-table which seated 12, the flocks of surrounding smaller ones were for six. Berry and Jennifer were at one which adjoined the larger one, presided over by Leslie.

Berry's absence from that center-table was one of those elaborately casual maneuvers which usually fail of their purpose and become merely elaborate maneuvers.

"Berry's been banished," said a Miss Steen der Venter, who was narrow and caustic and something of a town legend because she continued to refuse to sell or build on 50 fabulously valuable feet of vacant lot on Fifth avenue, but maintained it as a playground for her three black poodles. "I scent a diplomatic move!"

"I'm making him eat at second table, Van Steen; his manners are too atrocious for first," cried Leslie, whom Berry had once accused of overhearing, no matter how large the crowd, any reference to him.

Almost immediately the occasion began to progress. The amusing feature of the bar kept a steady stream of young men skating across blue tiles, imperiling waiters, and returning with assorted tumblers of assorted drinks, which they balanced precariously, to the squeals of women in decollette who feared for their shoulders.

Sons of the Mighty

A Miss Flavverdale, impoverished, but one of the right Flavverdales, the one, by the way, who had managed things for the St. Louis Slocums, began by insisting upon carting Berry off before the fowl course, with a napkin filled with dinner rolls to be crumpled into the goldfish-pond.

"I want to stay with my field-mouse," bawled Berry, and began to stroke Jennifer's ermine and pull at the fringe of soft black tails which bordered it.

"Don't be an idiot, Berry," said the efficient Miss Flavverdale; "I'll buy you a five-and-ten-cent one."

"Was that a dirty dig?" said Jennifer to a beautiful boy beside her whom she did not know, but who was in the first throes of getting drunk on champagne, which he kept sipping, while he refused all food.

"A dirty dig," he repeated, rolling his extraordinarily blue and luminous eyes. "A dirty dig!" Apparently the octave of his conversation, at least at this stage, consisted in repeating the last three words of what was said to him.

"The Beautiful next to you, Miss Rarick," sang out Leslie Edgerton, on a sudden surge of geniality, when she saw Berry hauled protesting along the Mediterranean of blue tiles, "is Jules Wilke-Barre. He's going to cut a tooth for us later in the evening!"

A Wilke-Barre! A thrill shot through Jennifer. Despise herself for the snobbery of it as she would, it was impossible not to bristle with awareness among names that were whole planetary systems in the social firmament. This naughty-eyed, beautiful-eyed boy, whose knee had to be shoved away again and again as it approached hers, a Wilke-Barre! Here, gathered at these 50 tables, were the youngsters of the mighty ones of the land, Madison, Rhodes, Flavverdale, Wilke-Barre.

"Five and Ten" Synopsis

John G. Rarick has made millions as a chain store operator. His wife, Jenny, shortly after their marriage, lent him $2,500, all she had, when he was near failure, and out of this money he built riches. Rarick buys a magnificent home, but secretly finds himself hating his wife. This is accentuated by his own temperamental inability to get close to Jennifer and Avery, his children. Rarick installs an odd genius, Dr. Felix Gerkes, in his house. Jenny objects, and a bitter scene follows, in which Rarick delivers the ultimatum that Gerkes remain. He sends for Jennifer and compels her to cancel a dinner engagement to dine with Gerkes. Jennifer finds him interesting. Jenny begins to be intrigued with Ramon, a youthful gigolo. Avery comes home from school to beg his mother to help him get leave from his father to have a couple of years to himself. Jennifer likes the handsome and rich Berry Rhodes and Jenny urges her to try to win him. Berry kisses Jennifer while on the way to a party at the Edgerton home.

DAILY TRUE STORY — Sold!

Amateur Detective Trails Suspects From Subway

Kenneth Rodgers heard the words, "Change for local." He closed the book, which had a blank brown paper cover, slipped it into the pocket of his top coat and went to the door of the subway car.

When the door opened he stepped out on the platform, leaned against a pillar, produced the small volume and proceeded to read:

"The successful detective depends upon his keen observation and his ability to hear things without giving the least appearance of listening.

This was disappointing to Kenneth Rodgers—the part about the infrequent use of disguises.

Kenneth already had 20 or more disguises in the bottom of his trunk. They were, he believed, excellent ones. He had frequently lined his face, donned the gray wig and white mustache and walked down from his room and out of the lodging house without being identified.

Kenneth was going to become a great detective!

He had decided on this some years before, after reading a seeming endless number of detective stories. At present he was head of the shipping office of a lively little manufacturing concern. It was a good position for one of Kenneth Rodgers' simple attainments, but to Kenneth it lacked romance, thrill and many other things that go to make one's occupation really worth while.

Decides to Practice

This little volume he was reading was the sixth lesson in the third complete course in detective work that he had taken up. He didn't want to miss anything.

There were a couple more detective schools he had heard highly spoken of. He intended to go through these—all by correspondence—and then, he believed, he would be equipped to go forth and give some private detective agency the great privilege of his services.

He opened the book and eyed those two paragraphs again.

Kenneth felt safe in regard to the matter of keen observation. Little got past his vision. Didn't they say, down in the shipping room, that if anyone drove a nail crooked in a packing case young Rodgers would spot it? They did.

Now as to keeping his ears open—the ability to listen without giving the least appearance of listening—how about this, he asked himself?

Kenneth wasn't sure about it. He could listen well, but didn't he have a trick of slanting his head—of showing that he was straining to hear? He feared that he did. He would have to practice this. There was a story he had read about Vic Gamache, the great French detective, who could roll cigarets with one hand, carry on an animated conversation, and know every word that two other men were saying to each other some 15 paces distant!

That was a stunt!

Kenneth decided that he would practice this.

Unfortunately it was an odd hour of the day, also a holiday, and not many people were in the subway.

Violates Rule

He let a local pass without boarding it. He would wait and read until some people came down, then he would practice listening to—

Kenneth dropped his train of thought because two men had come down. They were busy talking. They came to the edge of the platform and looked up the track toward the curve.

Kenneth resumed his book—the trouble was, he really did look at the words and read them—that wouldn't do—it distracted his mind. He opened back to a chapter he had already studied—he pretended to read; he leaned against the pillar in a more careless attitude and frowned at his book as he tried to listen.

"That curve is right, I tell you," one of the men said.

Kenneth stole a glance, wondering what curves they were talking about. There were no women there. Perhaps it was a billboard picture, but no—both men were staring up the subway track.

"You are right—perfect," the second man answered.

Kenneth frowned again. A couple of engineers, he guessed, discussing the subway as a job of underground transportation construction.

Well, it would be good practice to listen, and not let them suspect that he was listening.

"Then," said the first man, "do you want to buy the subway?"

Kenneth Rodgers violated an established rule of detective work, he started, visibly; he turned and shot the speaker a sharp glance.

"Why, yes; I want to buy the subway."

"All right," the second man answered, cheerfully; "if you want to buy, I'll sell it to you!"

Kenneth Rodgers closed his book, mopped his forehead with his handkerchief and eyed the speaker.

He must be crazy—as if any one man owned the subway!

"Now, look here, are you sure that you can sell the subway?"

The first man seemed to be really serious and anxious.

"What's to hinder me?"

"Well, what I mean is, is the subway yours to sell?"

Kenneth ran his finger around inside his collar. What sort of stuff was he hearing? What did three fifty mean—billions? Must be, the subway certainly cost more than three and a half million.

"Why, yes; no argument there," the man agreed, "three hundred and fifty dollars is a fair price. I could afford that."

To Produce Proof

"But I don't want to sell it—I want to keep it."

"Keep it or sell it, I've got to get rid of that subway."

"Have you any papers or anything — you know — to show ownership?"

"Sure I have. I tell you my father left it to me."

Kenneth eyed the second man now to see how he reacted to this statement. He seemed to believe it, for he nodded.

"Then it's all right; I'll buy it; wasn't sure about that curve, we were discussing it, you know."

"Well, I proved it to you, didn't I? It's perfect, isn't it?"

The men started out again. Evidently they hadn't come down for a train. A local rumbled in, but Kenneth Rodgers had more important business than going up on a local—he was about to run down a crime—or at least a sort of crime.

He was wise now!

Two blocks they walked east, and turned in at a brownstone building, going up a flight of stone steps.

Perhaps he ought to hang around and tip the sucker, when he came out—the sucker could call a cop and go back and demand his money as soon as he learned that this man did not own the subway.

Demand Explanation

"I—er—" he cleared his throat, "am a sort of amateur detective, officer. I just run down a crooked game."

"Yeah?" said the cop.

"Yes—old confidence game—two men have gone in there at No. 132. One of them says he owns the subway and the sucker has promised to pay him $350 for it, cash—can you tie that?"

"What brand you drinking, son?"

"On the level," and Kenneth told of the conversation he overheard in the subway.

Just then both men came out again. They hadn't been inside more than five minutes.

"There they are, officer!"

The cop stopped them.

"What's this?" he asked, pointing to a flat package.

"Painting, did you think it was a truck-load of hooch?" the man answered.

"Show me."

"Er-er-sorry, slight error, natural error."

"What's all this?" demanded the man with the picture.

The cop began to explain. Kenneth hurried away. Roars of laughter reached his ears.

He is still head of the shipping department, and has sort of lost interest in the detective business.

BLACKMAIL QUEEN TRIES TO SHAK

By Horace Frisby.

WASHINGTON.—Blackmail raised his grimy hand to th of fate and wig-wagged at one of the nation's spotless leade day. The intended victim was none other than myself, Horace pole Frisby. Frisby's cool behavior under threat of exposure stitutes another glorious chapter in my career.

The leader of the blackmail gang (I call her "The Tigress") is a blonde who I have tried for years to guide and escort home on several occasions. What thanks did I get? A slap in the face.

I then called a policeman, who naturally took my part, and together we chased "The Tigress" for blocks. Then she chased us, and threatened to tell my wife if I would not give her back $5 I had borrowed as a prank months ago.

I finally placed the fiend in a hack and gave the driver a substantial anonymous check to escort "The Tigress" outside the city limits. She is a vixen and I do not care who knows it. Furthermore, I will tell her so to her face if our romance is ever renewed and terminated again, as I sincerely hope it will be. Now let the nation get to work, and let bygones be bygones. Prosperity is just around the corner.

The system under which keepers of speakeasies, disorderly houses and gambling dens are fined by the police court magistrates, instead of being held for the grand jury, as the law requires, practically amounts to licensing them. It is a vicious system and should be broken. District Attorney Park could go a long way towards breaking it if he were of a mind to.

If it were legal or were sound public policy, the fining of speakeasies to the extent that the traffic would bear would yield Pittsburgh a handsome revenue and ease the tax burden of real estate owners. One reason why property taxes now constitute 80.6 per cent of Pittsburgh's municipal revenue, as against 73.2 per cent in 1917, is that the city received $600,000 a year from liquor license taxes before prohibition. Anyone who can suggest a decent, fair and practical substitute for the liquor license tax will deserve the thanks of the community.

Property owners could, of course, be given relief from their oppressive tax burden just as effectively by curtailment of municipal expenditures as by the discovery of new sources of revenue. In addition to inexcusable extravagances, favoritism in the awarding of contracts and the retention on the payroll of employes whose services are not required, the taxpayers are mulcted by careless planning of public works, which makes it necessary to spend more than was contemplated.

The County Commissioners are even more culpable than the city administration in the matter of exceeding, because of careless planning, the estimated cost of public works. The municipal airport, for which another $500,000 was voted by the commissioners yesterday, is an example. The citizens were told that $2,000,000 would provide a first-class airport and authorized the expenditure of that amount. The commissioners have now added $1,500,000 to the original estimate, and still there is no assurance that another appropriation will not be demanded.

Ralph H. Smith, deputy attorney general, sized up the situation fairly and wittily when he said at the independent Republican meeting in Peabody High School Thursday night that "the people need a police chief who is more interested in law enforcement than in mother-of-pearl bathtubs, a mayor who is more interested in taxes than rugs, county commissioners who can build a road without hurdling a water plant, and a district attorney who doesn't need newspapers to tell him the law."

The meeting, largely attended, was very encouraging as a sign that the people are restive under existing conditions, and that the political machine now in power is to have formidable opposition in the September primary election. Participation in the meeting of seasoned campaigners and practical politicians gives assurance that effective efforts will be made to win votes. Ballots are the only weapons to which the Republican organization gang are vulnerable.

More and more the cities of the United States are turning to the manager form of government. Since January 1 San Diego, Cal., and five other cities have adopted the plan. Pittsburgh may have to come to it if no relief can be had from the administrative evils from which it has so long suffered. Yet with honest and efficient men in office there is no reason why good government should not be had under the present system. The approaching elections will offer a chance for a fresh test of the system.

Conscienceless politicians, indifferent to the welfare of the people, have made a bad mess of things at Harrisburg. They have scornfully rejected the appeal for permission to engage in harmless recreation on Sunday; they threaten to perpetuate the iniquitous coal and iron police system, and they are thwarting the efforts to obtain relief from the oppression of unfair public utilities companies abetted by the Public Service Commission. Final decisions on these matters, so far as the present Legislature is concerned, will be reached next week. The votes of the legislators will be noted and kept in mind when they are again candidates for office.

The wreck of the Buffalo Flyer at Edgecliff, near New Kensington, appears to have been an accident for which no one could be held responsible. It was caused by a boulder that fell on the track from a cliff a few minutes before the arrival of the train. The wreck is a reminder that railroading, thanks to steel cars and safety instruction, is a far less hazardous occupation now than it was a comparatively few years ago.

In the early days, before the airbrake was in- vented, the railroads frequently suffered from frightful disasters. And even in the early days of the airbrake, when wooden cars were used, collisions were frequent and the death lists long. We have not had for years, thank goodness, a wreck in any way comparable to the terrible Twenty-eighth street crash, of which old people still talk with awe.

The experience of the railroads in reducing acci- dents encourages belief that automobile mishaps will also become fewer. Some drivers have already attained remarkable proficiency in avoiding accidents—W. R. Spang, of the Pittsburgh Motor Coach Company, for instance, who has just been awarded a trophy for driving a bus 200,000 miles without a mishap.

Mr. Spang says: "Drive the other fellow's car as well as you do your own and you will get by." We suppose he means by that to put yourself in the other fellow's place and accordingly make allowance for what he is going to do. Somewhat the same idea is suggested by the warning, "Be careful; you may meet a fool on the road."

The only problem in many a modern mother's life is whether her small son is going to grow up to be a gangster or a gigolo—the two "professions" which eliminate that quaint only thing called "work."

To go right on loving a man or woman who insists on telling you the honest truth about yourself, is the condensed milk of human kindness.

Most of a girl's "It" is what shines through her eyes—and comes from what's back of the eyes. "It" is not a physical but a mental quality, which gives poise to the mind, grace to the body and a vibrant charm to the whole personality.

Sometimes a woman would like to believe in a place of Future Punishment, so that she would know just where to look for her husband in the Hereafter.

Isn't It So?

Love of a man for himself never grows less.

Give some people a free foot and all they will do with it is to kick.

NEW YORK DAY BY DAY

By O. O. McIntyre

NEW YORK, May 23.—Purely personal piffle: I've always wanted to turn a squirrel loose in one of these Chock-Full-O'Nuts shops. The Belasco is the town's most beautiful theater. "The Green Pastures" is a truly great play but becomes tiresome in the middle of the second act.

The one thing I never worried about is whether I would be bald. I do not belong to a club or lodge. A scar on my forehead is from the collapse of a coal house while peeping into a lady's window with a gang of boys. Telephone calls around six in the morning frighten me.

I once got 510 shaves out of a shaving soap that guaranteed 300. The two ugliest names are Neitzsche and Schopenhauer. The one dinner I attended without my wife in the past year was that of the Dutch Treat. I like to walk barefoot in grass after a rain. It tickles so.

The only man I ever thought had laughing eyes is Phil Baker. In 10 years I have answered but one razzing letter. It came from Cloquet, Minn. The scenery that gave me the biggest emotional wallop were the floating gardens in old Mexico. I frequently get the giggles at a serious drama and have to leave.

I can sit utterly fascinated all evening watching a pair of young lovers dining in a cafe. Yet Robert Montgomery as a screen lover bores me. All of which makes me one against millions. But I still have a first row crush on Helen Gahagan. Especially when she sings.

Once a month I have a yen for a chili dinner. And the best I have found so far is at 109 West Forty-ninth street. At least 2,000 of my books have been borrowed and not returned. I got a greater kick talking to a young lion tamer recently than talking to Alphonso when he was kinging.

No tailor ever made a pair of pants to suit me. I am able to work best between 2 and 5 in the afternoon and after midnight. For years some of the most amusing cracks in my mail were signed Hanque. I learned only a few months ago they came from Henry Sell.

The funniest story I have heard this year is Floyd Gibbons' tale of the visiting lecturer and the ventilator fan. But it would have to be cleaned up to print. And thus be spoiled. Fannie Hurst in a stage box suggests an aristocratic lady in a Russian novel. My favorite cold dish is macaroni and cheese. Africa, at the moment, is the country I long to see. I have no fear of spiders.

* * *

Dr. L. W. Darrah in Ellwood, Pa., is one of my most interesting correspondents. He writes with greater sophistication than Dorothy Parker and with far more sympathy. After eight months I cannot tell the front door bell from the back. Rupert Hughes has the finest choice of words in conversation of anyone I know. He can speak of "callipygian Godivas" and make it sound casual. The only time my wife ever criticizes my work is when I am inaccurate.

* * *

The newspaper paragraph amusing me as much as any other is Bill Nye's: "Winter lingered so long in the lap of spring, that it occasioned a great deal of talk." Jay House strikes me as the best philosopher among columnists. Frank Sullivan writes the best nonsensical humor. Bugs Baer is the most expert wise cracker. The most cosmopolitan crowd I ever saw was in the lobby of the Adlon in Berlin. I like to read a verse or so in the Bible every day. Outside my home town I have a more pronounced sentimental attachment for Cincinnati. Outside New York I have more fun in Los Angeles. I slam doors when angry. My best pictures have been for passports. I feel foolish walking up a theater aisle.

I have ached to fall in with an adventuress at Monte Carlo. But my nearest contact was an old crone of the casinos who borrowed 20 francs and cadged two brandies. I once appeared before a grand jury and could not remember my name. And invariably mispronounce "Portsmouth." "Italian" and "mustache." I wouldn't give a nickel to meet Al Capone.

* * *

I could throttle people who keep on applauding in the theater after others have stopped. I love the smell of pine. The only private residence I ever cared to own was that of Pierre Cartier, the jeweler, in the Bois. I wear a watch on my right wrist. Paw-paws are my favorite fruit. It took me 27 minutes to write this. I used to recite a Henley poem when on the loose.

LYELL, BELOVED SCIENTIST

By Archibald Henderson

Sir Charles Lyell is one of those classic figures in geology who, by reason of the energy of their natures and the volume of their work, leave a profound mark upon the science of their day. Lyell was no great discoverer in science; but he succeeded in attracting the interest of the general public to the subject in which he was so immersed. Although he disliked the routine of class-room lecturing, he enjoyed the opportunities frequently afforded him to give popular lectures on geology to huge audiences. Charles Darwin once said: "The science of geology is enormously indebted to Lyell—more so, as I believe, than to any other man who ever lived."

Charles Lyell was born at Kinnordy, Scotland, on November 14, 1797. His early career was not particularly promising; but he has himself described his deep interest in entomology. He carried on these studies out of sheer love for the subject, although he earned the sneers of his companions, who regarded the pursuit of butterflies as unmanly.

At first he studied at Winchester College; and at the age of 17 he matriculated at Exeter College, Oxford. The reading of Bakewell's Geology, which he found in his father's library, first aroused his interest in that subject. At Oxford, Dr. Buckland's lectures inspired him to devote his life to geological studies. He soon abandoned his original plan to be a lawyer; and aided by the indulgence of his father, was enabled to gratify his desire for geological researches.

For a long time he brooded over the question of writing a comprehensive work on geology. In 1818 he made a tour with his father, mother, and two elder sisters, in France, Switzerland and Italy. A year later he received his A. B. degree, and two years afterwards, his A. M. degree. It may be said that the real beginning of his scientific career dates from his appointment as secretary of the Geological Society in 1823.

Lyell was an incorrigible wanderer. He was not content to read descriptions: he must see the places and visit the localities. It is claimed that, hammer in hand, Lyell wandered over half the surface of the globe during his lifetime.

In the course of time he formed the acquaintance of many of the leading scientists of the world, including Cuvier and Humboldt. Lyell's studies led him to the conviction, which became the guiding principle of his scientific work, that the same agencies which are seen at work at present are those which produced the great geological features of the past. This was the fundamental idea of his notable work, "Principles of Geology," in three volumes. This work went through many editions; and Lyell continued to revise, amplify and rewrite it during the remainder of his life.

Various honors came to him. He was on intimate terms with the greatest men of his day. He made four visits to this country, where he was highly esteemed as a distinguished scientist. He was knighted in 1848, and became a baronet in 1864. He died on February 22, 1875, and was buried in Westminster Abbey.

BE A PITTSBURGH BOOSTER
To Your Friends in Other Cities

Seiji Yoshihara of Japan

He Is Worth Studying.

HE LANDED IN TOKIO FROM BERLIN.

A large part of success comes from knowing what others are doing. Such knowledge keeps you from thinking too much of yourself and your own achievements. Thus you avoid a dwarfing process.

The other day you saw in this column a picture of a Japanese girl in a swimming contest, painting a fan as she stood "treading water," in an ice-cold river in winter, with cakes of ice around her.

Here you see the courageous and brilliant Japanese pilot, Seiji Yoshihara, sitting on top of his monoplane, that he had just flown from Berlin, across Siberia, 6,800 miles to Tokio.

On his arrival Yoshihara first bowed to the crowd that awaited him, then, turning toward his airplane, took off his hat and made a polite Japanese bow to the machine.

He felt grateful to the engine that had carried him safely so far around the world's curving surface. In that he was like

After he had reverently saluted and thanked his plane, Yoshihara hurried to his mother, who was waiting patiently for her boy's return, never for a moment doubting that he would land safely.

They are wise. They know that in future years he who rules the air will rule the world.

They realize that in another war with Russia the icy stretches of Lake Baikal would no longer be any protection and in a war with North or South America even the wide Pacific would be no protection either.

But powerful planes and skillful pilots WOULD give protection, and Japan means to have both.

They can teach us many things and we should be ready to learn gratefully.

LISTEN, WORLD!

By Elsie Robinson

Strong, reckless men had but one desire when I was a youngster on the western frontier. They wished to "die with their boots on."

Once, sneaking under the swinging half door of Keenan's Golden Rule Saloon and peering between the elbows of the milling crowd, I saw a local hero whose wish had been granted. He lay sprawled upon the floor—a great, hairy mountain of a man, his flaming beard still flecked from his last schooner of beer. Others were discussing the nicety of the shot that had laid him low, but my interest centered in his shoes. I had never been able to understand that craving to "die with my boots on." What was there about boots—these, for instance? Dusty, shabby, knee-high affairs, scarred and stained by a hundred trails, scuffed at the toe and worn at the heel—why had he wanted to die in those?

It was many a year before I found the answer . . . but I came at last to see that only those who die with their boots on have really lived. To have lived with his boots on—that was the great point to the red headed man. Death was only an incident.

He had always gone shod for adventure.

He had chosen to go shod like that. Chosen boots instead of bedroom slippers or dancing pumps or neat, standardized business shoes. And he had chosen the things that go with adventure—loneliness and danger, discomfort and hardship. For there was something in him that despised safety and dreaded comfort. Above all, he had chosen independence and action. He wanted to live while the living was good—to live constantly, every minute of the time, right up to the last thud—He wanted to live, inside and out—to think his own thoughts, make his own decisions, run his own risks, take his own blame.

Perhaps some of his thoughts and decisions were far from admirable. He was, I guess, a pretty bad man, as we judge those things. But he'd—lived. And he wouldn't wake up on the other side and cry "Why didn't I take a chance?" And then cuss in his beard because he hadn't.

He had died—and he had lived—with his boots on. And the dust and the scars on those battered boots were, to him, marks of honorable venture. He'd have hated to have gone out, with the bed clothes tucked neatly under his chin and his feet on a hot water bag.

Perhaps you condemn him, but many others have chosen to die—and to live—like that. They were not always to be found in mining camps. Some, through force of circumstances, spent all their days at quiet jobs in humdrum streets . . . some sat in the difficult seats of the mighty. BUT THEY ALL LIVED AND DIED WITH THEIR BOOTS ON.

It wasn't easy. People called them fools—or worse. They could have had a much softer and more profitable time if they had been willing to compromise and alibi and evade, like more cautious folk. But they refused. They sent their souls out upon strange trails. They braved the danger and the dust. They were ready, always, to shoot it out with life on any issue. And they died, in the thick of things, with their traveling boots still on.
